BRITISH LEADER DEMANDS LEAGUE ADMIT GERMANY

Lord Robert Cecil Quoted As Urging Immediate Recognition

FRENCH PAPERS QUOTED

Government Criticised For Attitude Against Its Former Enemies

(U. S. Naval Radio)

The following message, dispatched by the German Radio Service, has been picked up by the U. S. Navy Radio in Shanghai.

Nauen, Germany, Nov. 10.—While Lord Robert Cecil, of England, in the Anglo-French Review is demanding the immediate admittance of Germany into the League of Nations, in order to create a strong bulwark against further wars, the number of French papers demanding a revision of the Peace Treaty is constantly increasing.

"Humanite," a leading French newspaper, designates the revision of the treaty as "an absolute necessity," recommended already in England and Italy. Only the French government, this publication says, is still wrapped in a cloud of phrase-making importance, and remains intransigent.

The Treaty, the article concludes, looks as if it was drawn up against all common sense by parties desiring to increase the general misery.

Greek Premier In Severe Criticism Of Former Ruler

(Reuter's Service)

Athens, November 9.—In the course of a recent address the Greek Premier stated, inter alia: "Ex-King Constantine begged German headquarters to attack the Anglo-French forces and drive them into the sea; he plotted the murder of the French and British in Athens; he endeavored unremittingly to render Greece incapable of entering the war, and thus to please Germany, Bulgaria and Turkey."

Settlement of the estate of the late King Alexander seems certain to lead to unexpected complications, as ex-King Constantine is apparently sure to object to Madame Mancs, King Alexander's morganatic wife inheriting the property of the dead monarch.

Plebiscite Will Be Granted For Vilna

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 9.—The Polish and Lithuanian Governments have accepted the proposal of the League of Nations for a plebiscite on the territory of Vilna.

Millerand Praises Sultan Of Morocco

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 9.—President Millerand has telegraphed to the Sultan of Morocco, Moulay Yussef, his congratulations upon the success of the operation at Wezzan which was the result of co-operation between French troops and those of the Sherif.

King Of Belgians Calls New Cabinet

(Reuter's Service)

Brussels, November 9.—The King of the Belgians has called upon M. Carton de Wiart to form a Cabinet, and the latter has requested time for reflection.

Normal Conditions Restored In Wales

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—The fears that the thousands of miners, who voted against the Government proposals, especially the South Wales miners, would refuse to return to work, have not materialised and today work is in full swing in all the coalfields in the country.

The railways have also resumed their normal services.

And, Pray, Who Measured The Fish?

(U. S. Naval Radio)

Point Isabel, Texas, Nov. 9.—President-elect Senator Warren G. Harding went tarpon fishing on the first day of his outing, and after a 45 minute struggle with a six foot prize catch, lost him when the troll line broke and the prize, falling on the wreckage of an old wharf, escaped.

AUSTRIA LIABLE TO LOSE PLACE ON MAP, BELIEF

Reparations Commission May Come To Rescue Of Nation With Big Loan

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 7.—That there is a likelihood of Austria disappearing from the map of Europe is foreshadowed by Sir William Goode, President of the Austrian section of the Reparations Commission.

Sir William Goode, interviewed by Reuter, stated that the delegates of the nine Powers on his section have presented a unanimous report to the Reparations Commission from which it is expected that the powers may make the grave decision indicated.

He pointed out that conditions in Austria had reached such a point that the corporate existence of the country had become practically impossible.

The exchange had fallen 1,000 points in the last four months, the pound sterling being quoted at 1,700. Sir William Goode emphasised that Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Poland, formerly parts of the Austrian Monarchy, had all agreed that immediate action was necessary.

Vienna, November 8.—It is reported that the Allied Austrian Reparations Commission will recommend the granting to Austria of credits totalling 250,000,000 dollars in five instalments to be spread over the period, January 1921 to January 1925.

Subjects Proposed For League Action

Hygiene, International Court, Child Labor, India To Be Discussed

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 8.—The provisional agenda for the first session of the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva on November 15, includes the consideration of questions of hygiene, particularly typhus; the employment of women and children in industry; the opium traffic; the establishment of an International Court of Justice; India's application for representation on the administrative Council of the International Labor Bureau; and the reduction of armaments.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, November 7.—Although the State Department has not yet protested against the agreement between Great Britain, France and Italy, defining their respective spheres of influence in Turkey, officials indicate that objection may be made on the ground that the agreement violates the principle of the "open door."

French Mine Owners Confer With Men

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 9.—At the request of the Minister of Public Works, the central committee of the French collieries has agreed to meet representatives of the Federation of Underground Workers today.

The latter have given the miners to understand that they mean to broach discussions, not only with the delegates of the colliery committees, but with those of all the underground industries.

Italian Editor Slain When Socialists Fight Policemen At Milan

(Reuter's Service)

Milan, Nov. 8.—Signor Carlo Rossi, editor of the Secolo, was killed and several persons injured in the course of a conflict between Socialists and the police here today.

Verona, November 7.—After a domonstration before the Garibaldi monument here today, a party of demonstrators proceeded to the Communist headquarters in order to pull down the Red flag.

The occupants fired upon the party and wounded three of them, whereupon the building was stormed.

In the course of the fighting the Socialist deputy, Signor Scarabello, was killed by the explosion of a bomb in his pocket. Several other persons were wounded. Police and troops finally restored order and occupied the Communist headquarters.

Milan, November 8.—The joint commission, composed of six representatives of the manufacturers and six of the workers, which is meeting here to study the question of Labor participation in the control of factories, has disagreed. The employers and workers will probably present separate reports.

JAPANESE SLAY TWENTY KOREANS AT MISSION SCHOOL

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 9.—The following communique has been issued by the Japanese Foreign Office:

"The Japanese attacked Korean malcontents who were menacing the Japanese communications at Changyen, south-east of Chi-ze-chieh and north of the Tumen river. A mission school, a native school and ten residences were destroyed, as there was incriminating evidence to show that the occupants were supporting the agitators.

"Twenty malcontents were killed. The Japanese attack was confined to places against which there was justifiable evidence, although apparently the outlaws have been operating throughout the region."

The newspaper Yorozu (independent) writes: "It is expected that the Japanese will evacuate Chientao in December, in order to avoid misconceptions abroad provided the Chinese guarantee order."

REPUBLICANS GAIN 61 SEATS IN NEW HOUSE OF CONGRESS

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 7.—It has been definitely determined that the composition of the new House of Representatives will be as follows: Republican 293 seats; Democrats, 138 seats; Independents, 3 seats; Socialists 1 seat. These figures represent a Republican gain of 61 seats.

Boulon Case Adjourned Until Saturday Morning

Redirect and final cross examination of Assistant Treasurer Horace Beeson of Messrs. Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, Inc., was completed and three other witnesses testified yesterday in the trial of Mr. Frederick G. Boulon, former Shanghai manager of the Company, who is facing charges of embezzlement before United States Commissioner F. J. Schuhl. The preliminary hearing was resumed yesterday afternoon and adjourned last night until Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Mr. Arthur Jones, chief accountant for Messrs. Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, was on the stand when the Court rose, having completed his direct examination, which was conducted by Mr. W. S. Fleming, assistant United States District Attorney, Mr. R. S. Haskell, counsel for the defense, started his cross-examination.

Mr. Francis G. Green, at one time clerk in the Accounting Department of G. W. and W. now with Standard Oil Company of New York, identified certain entries in account books as in his hand writing and stated that they were entered under directions of the chief accountant of G. W. and W.

ACCOUNTANT CALLED

Mr. Homer A. Hollopeter, an accountant in the employ of Messrs. Haskins and Sells, identified a transcript of ledger account of F. G. Boulon with G. W. and W. as having been made by him and analysis of that account showing credit balance at different periods.

Mr. Haskell objected to the offer in evidence of the analysis on the ground that it was misleading and did not show all the credits and debits.

When the case was resumed at two o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. Beeson took the stand. He was questioned by Mr. Fleming:

Q—When did you discover that Mr. Boulon was dealing in exchange?

A—I think it was about the latter part of August or the first of September that I began to look into the matter.

Q—As soon as you discovered that you began to investigate, did you?

A—Yes.

Q—These two dealers mentioned in that voucher under that Tls. 12,000 item. Did you ever see those dealers, ever talk with them?

A—I never talked with them in connection with this at all until since Mr. Swift arrived. We have had interviews with them since then.

Q—Has Mr. Swift talked with them?

A—Yes.

THE CROSS EXAMINATION

Q—Mr. Beeson you have stated that during these transactions you were not assistant treasurer of the company, that you were appointed along in August some time?

A—I believe I stated that I did not know of my appointment from New York until that time.

Q—However, prior to that and during your term with the Shanghai office you held a power of attorney from New York didn't you?

A—Yes.

Q—And you were appointed by the head office in New York?

A—I was given a power of attorney from them.

Q—And appointed to come to Shanghai office by the Head Office in New York?

A—Yes.

Q—And for what purpose?

A—When I came out here about two years ago it was for the purpose of getting the office organisation into better shape than it was at that time and bring the reports of the company up to date, getting the accounting department into better shape than it was.

Q—And your work continued along that line?

A—Yes.

Q—Prior to your taking up the accounting work here and auditing the firm employed chartered accountants to do that work, didn't they?

A—Yes, they had chartered accountants before I came out and even after I came out, for some time after.

Q—Was not your auditing to take the place of the firm of chartered accountants?

A—It was in fact so stated by New York, I believe.

Q—You did the same work that they would have done, did you not?

A—Yes, up to some time last Winter or Spring when other duties took me away from them very largely.

Q—During the period from March 1 to the end of June Mr. Coleman was here as District Manager, was he not?

A—No, he left here in March, the latter part of March, toward the end.

Q—He was here when you dis-

OBSERVE SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF ARMISTICE DAY

Church Services, Dinner Dance And Concert In Varied Program

TO UNVEIL TABLET

Rowing Club Will Honor Memory Of 22 Members Killed In War

Today, the second anniversary of Armistice Day, will be celebrated in Shanghai by a program which includes a memorial service, the unveiling of a memorial tablet, a dinner, dance and concert.

The church service will be held at the Cathedral at 10:45 o'clock this morning. It is under the auspices of the United Services Association and members of this organisation have been asked to attend in uniform if possible. A landing party from the British gunboats in port will also attend the services, parading to the Cathedral from the Bund. The time of the service has been fixed upon in order that it may include the two-minute silence which King George has suggested should be observed at 11 o'clock.

At noon at the Shanghai Rowing Club a handsome bronze memorial to the twenty-two members who gave their lives in the great war will be unveiled. Sir Everard Fraser, K. C. M. G., British Consul-General, will unveil the tablet and Mr. E. C. Pearce, an ex-captain of the Club, and Mr. Brodie A. Clarke, the Club's oldest member, will assist in the ceremony. It is expected that many of the United Services men will attend the ceremony.

At 12:30 p.m. buglers of the British Navy will sound the Last Post at the Shanghai Club in honor of the dead.

The United Services Association and the French organisation—the Union des Anciens Combattants de la Grand Guerre—will have a dinner at the French Club at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Members only will attend this function, but following it there will be a concert and a dance in which the families and relatives of the members will participate.

New York, Nov. 9.—The Geneva correspondent of the Associated Press reports that Bulgaria has requested admission to the League of Nations.

Vienna, Nov. 9.—The government of Austria formulated the memorial of the signing of the armistice by asking admission to the League of Nations. They intend to present it to the parliament Wednesday.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 9.—The Chamber of Deputies and the Senate have unanimously adopted the new propcsal of the Government to bury the remains of the "unknown soldier" beneath the Arc de Triomphe de l'Etoile.

The Senate, however, in response to its expressed desire, has received an assurance that Gambetta's heart will be associated in the honors done the "unknown warrior," passing beneath the great arch at the same time as the coffin.

M. Leon Bourgeois, President of the Senate, explained that the members of the Upper Chamber wished thus to link the Republic and the Motherland in a common sentiment.

Peking, Nov. 9.—Peking is to celebrate Armistice Day with an old-fashioned football game on the British Legation Glacis, starting at 2.30 p.m. The game will be between ex-service officers and the Legation guard team. The former will be represented by Captain Collins, goal, Major Barker and Captain Little, backs, Captains C. W. Scott, Cassels and Brennan, halves; Major Pape, Captain Milton, Captains Bears, Mieville and McRinnon, forwards.

Pablenko Declares Himself Dictator Of The Ukraine

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—A telegram from Lemberg, received via Berlin, states that General Pablenko, Commander-in-Chief of the Ukrainian forces, has taken General Petlura prisoner and has proclaimed himself Dictator of the Ukraine.

He has put himself at the disposal of General Skoropadski.

SAME OLD STORY; CAN'T WIN A JIT; PONIES GO WRONG; WOT'S TH' USE?

Flock Of Dismally Blue Duckets Again Returns On Inside Dope

By "Mory Burd"

Well, that's what I thought.

Nineteen blue tickets—oh, salubriously selected hue—spread out before me—and not a combination of digits capable of being figured into any one of the dozen which slid under the wire to annoy the paymasters in the paying-off booth.

Not that I expected anything else. Oh no, far be it from me to have entertained the belief, if only for the fleeting instant, that there should loom on the bulletin frames the announcement that I should grow lop-sided carting a suit-case full of $10 bills back to the heart of the metropolis.

Hadn't thought a thing about it—beyond engaging passage on the next Empress liner, ordering a solitaire at Tiffany's (to be called for about Christmas), cabling about a lease on a forty-acre patch up on a lake up in the Kootenay country; and giving the tailor a tentative prospectus on about a dozen or eighteen suits, to be thrown together along the more recently rotogravured lines from Broadway.

ON THE HOME FOR AGED

Aside from this modest program, not a single wayward hair [illegible] about me.

There wasn't an individual among the thirty-two-thousand-odd of us who had the slightest sort of a suspicion that he might, perchance, hold the fatal ticket.

Not a one.

If there had been, I feel sure that he would have gone out to the nearest charitable institution in the town and said, in a carefully restrained manner: "here are $167,294.40, due and payable to me on November 10 of this year, which I would like to have turned over to the fund for indigent jockeys!"

I'm not blaming anyone for the way things turned out. They probably would have turned out in about the same way if I had.

But it does seem to me that there might have been a little more consistency in the program.

Why, for one thing, doesn't the Race Club engage a mortician to arrange the musical part of the function?

As far as we could detect, there wasn't a single lugubrious note sounded by the orchestra following the Champions yesterday.

And yet, after the sixth race, this same band of uninspired troubadors burst forth into those "Left-All-Alone-Again Blues."

Not that this wasn't an appropriate tune, even at that stage. Still, they might have picked out something more opportune than "Happy Days in Dixie" to usher the field into the stretch for the next item on the program.

ANOTHER ERROR

But that's not the worst of the affair. Why is it that there isn't a board of censorship to sit upon the christening of these hamstrung chippuses on which we base our aspirations?

Sometime during the evening before a kind-faced individual came up to us, while we were reclining disconsolately against the stove, and whispered a tip.

There was a lot of noise about, but we got the tip quite distinctly.

Only, next morning, the only thing we could remember about it was that it had to do with the name of some bird.

WHEREIN WE GALLOP

Galloping into the pari-mutuel parlor yesterday with this ornithological idea firmly in hand we encountered, right off the bat, the placard appended over the block of tickets being sold on "The Eagle."

Having done what we might to eradicate the aforesaid block, we went outside to while away the moments until it should be time to come in and bulge our costume all out with the proceeds.

It was so dark by this time that you couldn't tell an eagle

Stripes, Checks, Plaids And Dots Covered Yet Crowd Is Colorful

Thrills!

The big day for which all Shanghai has been waiting—striking off the days on the calendar for weeks and weeks—is over.

Such a crowd! Everyone was there from the poorest coolie and Uncle Henry from the farm back home who had never been to a horse race before in his life to the taipan, blase and nonchalant, with two score of Champions tickets in his pocket.

The grandstands, lawns, sidewalks and betting rings were thronged with an eager, surging, moving restless throng. The streets leading to the race course looked like parade day in the States—only Thibet Road was far more picturesque than Main Street. Handsome mounted sikh police, wearing red turbans, controlled the crowd and kept order among the amahs, the "number one" boys, coolies and cooks who clutched their tickets and tried to balance themselves on the improvised grandstand outside the course.

CROWD LINES ROOFS

The roof of the New World Theater was filled with spectators—a thin line of humanity silhouetted against the grey sky, while the windows and balconies of the Yih Ping Shang Hotel were overflowing.

The Race Club was wearing its gala attire and the gayly colored bunting, flags and pendants waved a welcome to the greatest number of people who ever watched a "Champions."

The bands played. The ponies, with their riders wearing bright yellow, blue, green satin suits—danced and pranced eager to be off—men cheered—the first race of the day was on.

IN A DESULTORY FASHION

The great crowd was tense. There was very little talking. Little enthusiasm. The place was like a funeral compared to a Kentucky Derby. Men and women crowded around the boards on which were posted the numbers and names of the horses—then hurried away to the betting rings to purchase a five dollar ticket.

Men and women laughed and chatted as they collected their winnings but even at the windows paying the lucky ones, there was

By "Grandstand"

In the presence of a cosmopolitan crowd, the size of which could only be unreliably estimated because it found purchase in the Race Club grandstands and all the way round the outside of the Public Recreation Grounds, "Billy" Hill yesterday piloted Messrs. Winsome and Hasty's gallant little chestnut pony, The Hawk, to a comparatively easy victory in The Champion Sweepstakes, with Messrs. Stephen and Burkill's grey, Bydand, and Mr. Jeromi's roan, Tatouillard taking the other two places.

Twelve "champions," including the highly-touted Tientsin griffin, King's Cross; John Peel's former speedburner, Silver Streak; and others almost equally famous, faced Starter W. B. O. Middleton for the classic, out of twenty-five which qualified.

The Hawk was not considered seriously by the wiseacres, who played Bydand, King's Cross and Silver Streak off the boards. Hence a ticket on Mr. Winsome and Hasty pony paid $72 to the holder.

The race was singularly devoid of especial incident, save for the splendid ride of Mr. Hill on the winning pony.

MARLOW SET PACE

The little bangtails got off in good shape, with Mr. White on Marlow and Mr. Johnstone on Silver Streak in the lead at the first turn, closely followed by Mr. Dalgliesh on King's Cross, Mr. Heard on Hightide and Mr. Arnhold on The Heron.

As the ponies emerged from behind the "Rec" club-house Marlow was seen to be falling back, while Mr. Brand on Bydand, and Mr. Heard on Hightide, began to creep up. Mr. Hill was then rating The Hawk just off the pace, taking his time for the opportunity to whirl in on the rails. Tatouillard was fifth at this point and seemed to be in a pocket from which even his admirers feared he would not be able to free himself.

Turning into the stretch, Bydand was seen to be leading, with The Hawk thrashing his way through the bunch in the center of the course and Tatouillard still entangled. Co-insurance, with Mr. Vida aboard, was leading the melee and looked to have a good chance for a place.

HILL MAKES MOVE

Not until the last furlong did Mr. Hill apply the whip and bring his mount into serious contention with the Stephen and Burkill entry, just then going great guns toward the finish line.

Simultaneously Mr. Moller, on Tatouillard, finally broke through on the rail and tore after the leaders, with Co-insurance at his withers.

Meanwhile Mr. Brand, determined to hold his winning lead, gave Bydand his head and a few sharp whacks across the flanks which sent the Spring Champion forward like an arrow.

Fast as he flew, the inexorable Hawk was soon upon him, past

WAR IN IRELAND PREMIER'S VIEW BEFORE HOUSE

Lloyd George Says Present Condition Cannot Be Regarded Otherwise

PARLIAMENTS BILL UP

Amendments Proposed By Government Adopted As Measure Is Offered

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 7.—There were wild scenes in Londonderry during the night with the result that five policemen were wounded and are now in the hospital. Two policemen were attacked by armed men and shot and the remaining three were found lying in the streets seriously wounded.

Subsequently a number of business premises, supposed to belong to Sinn Feiners, were set on fire by masked men. The noise of the explosion of bombs and the firing of rifles and revolvers continued for some time and caused alarm throughout the city.

An official report, after mentioning that a shop was burned down, adds that three plain-clothes policemen were seriously wounded by gun-shot, believed to have been fired by military who were escorting the fire brigade.

DELEGATES ARE PASSED

New York, Nov. 8.—The London Correspondent of the Associated Press telegraphs that the Irish Home Rule Bill reached the final stage in the House of Commons after the Government had added two clauses, which Irish and Liberal politicians say render the measure "practically dead." The clauses provide for second Chambers in the Irish Parliaments and for the dissolution of the Parliaments in the event of their being improperly conducted.

London, Nov. 8.—The Foreign Office has granted passports to two inhabitants of Balbriggan and Thurles, both scenes of alleged reprisals, to proceed to New York to give evidence before the Commission of Enquiry into Irish outrages, appointed by the New York newspapers, the Nation.

ASYLUM MAY BE CLOSED

London, Nov. 8.—As a result of the refusal of the Government to pay the customary subsidies to Irish public bodies, which will not permit a Government official to audit their accounts, the Committee of Ballinasloe Lunatic Asylum, unable to meet their expenses, have decided to call upon the relatives of the 1,500 lunatics, confined there, to contribute to their support. If the result is unsatisfactory, the Committee will close the asylum and discharge the inmates.

London, Nov. 8.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Lloyd George, replying to the suggestion of Lord Hugh Cecil that an enquiry should be held into whether the reprisals in Ireland had been committed by authority, said that the House had already expressed its opinion after hearing both sides and he personally was convinced that the men who were suffering in Ireland were men engaged in murderous conspiracy.

Referring to the shooting of a woman, the Premier said that that was one of the unfortunate incidents which were always happening in war (Cries of "War?")

Mr. Lloyd George: "Certainly it is rebellion and in every conflict of this kind innocent people are hit unintentionally."

Replying to Mr. Joseph Devlin's allegation that innocent people had been attacked, the Prime Minister replied that the Government could not tamper with the authorities who were putting down conspiracy but, if Mr. Devlin gave particulars, he would personally make inquiries into the matter.

PLAN FOR PARLIAMENTS

London, Nov. 8.—In the House of Commons today when the Home Rule Bill was again referred to committee, a new Government clause was adopted by 175 votes to 31, providing for the creation of Second Chambers for the two Irish Parliaments but leaving the duty of framing the scheme for them to the Irish Parliaments.

The Government originally proposed to draft a scheme itself and was today criticised for evading the task. Sir Edward Carson argued that it was sufficient to provide a Second Chamber for the Southern Parliament only.

Sir L. Worthington Evans (Minister without Portfolio) declared that, even if the Second Chambers were not established, the Irish Parliaments would continue to function.

A further amendment was adopted, placing the responsibility for providing funds for the Irish Universities upon the Southern Parliament.

The Government originally proposed that candidates for election to the Irish Parliaments must take the Oath of Allegiance before they were nominated but in consequence of hostility to this proposal, the clause was dropped and a new one, providing that if the number of members, validly elected were less than fifty percent or if the number who had taken the Oath of Allegiance were less than half, such Parliament might be dissolved and its functions placed in the hands of a committee, nominated by the Lord Lieutenant.

"LEGISLATIVE ABSURDITY"

Lord Hugh Cecil declared that the clause was "the greatest legislative absurdity ever suggested." Mr. Asquith said that it forcibly illustrated the "farcical character" of the Southern Parliament. The contingency contemplated, he added, was certain to arise in South Ireland, which would then be reduced to the condition of the most backward of our Crown Colonies. The clause was carried by 137 votes to 11.

Replying to the debate, Mr. Bonar Law asked: "What is the good of suggesting further concessions when seventy Irish members declare that they have been elected to establish a Republic and nothing else?" The position the Government took up, he continued, was that they were prepared to give Ireland the largest measure of self-government which commended itself to the peoples of Great Britain and Ireland.

DEPEND ON PEOPLE

They had to choose between that and surrender to the Extremists in the South of Ireland. Nothing had done such harm to the change of settlement as the declaration by statesmen in England that they were ready to go much farther than any reasonable man in Ireland demanded.

He believed that once the people of Ireland realised that Great Britain was in earnest in putting down crime and was not going to be driven to new schemes because of murder, they would realise that the Government was giving a very generous measure of self-government. When the Bill was on the Statute Book and ready to be carried out there would be honestly believed, be a new situation created in Ireland.

Sir Donald Maclean said that the discussion had had at least one result. They had now come to the one practical and certain conclusion, namely, that the Bill was dead.

To Arraign Sailor On Murder Charge

Jack Leo Welch, assistant engineer of the steamer West Henshaw, will be arraigned in the United States Court for China today on the charge of murdering a Chinese woman in a Fearon Road brothel last Sunday morning.

The defense, which will be represented by Mr. Paul M. Linebarger, it is understood, will enter a plea of accidental shooting. The prosecution will be conducted by Major C. P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney.

W.C.T.U. MEETING

Miss Margaret Blitz will address the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock at the Union Church Hall. She will speak on "The Medical Cabinet Up to Date." There will be music by Misses Stewart and Lemond.

little enthusiasm and no wild excitement. Everyone seemed to be playing the game.

The poor shopkeeper from the native city in his faded ragged coat hoping to win enough to drive want from his door and carry his family through the winter; the young chap from home, head over heels in debt and hoping to "get square" at the races, the man with the "get rich quick" dreams; the fiend who has studied the races for years; the pretty girl who has spent her money a hundred times, were all there. Men and women of many nationalities having one desires—to win.

OH, YOU LADIES

And the women.—Many looked like models in a New York Fashion Show parade.

While many were studying their blue race books and placing their bets as seriously as the men, the majority were strolling over the grounds greeting their friends and looking like pictures out of a magazine.

Many of the women—with an eye for color and beauty—were betting on the jockey wearing the gayest and most appealing costume. And were winning too. Every one was wearing furs, and there was not an ear exposed. This is as it should be, according to New York and Paris dictates.

COLD HIDES COLORS

Many were disappointed in the fashion display however. Striking gowns were covered by stunning fur coats. For cold breezes blew on race day.

Peeping from the coats were frocks of satin and taffeta.

One striking costume was of burnt orange satin over which the wearer, a striking looking brunette, wore a rich coat of sable.

Another young girl, looking like a Viking princess, wore an ermine hat and scarf over a white broadcloth suit which set off her blond coloring. One good looking costume was an Irish green wool jersey with which was worn a tam of the same color.

FURS IN EVIDENCE

One smart looking polo coat was made of camels hair and trimmed with leather buttons and collar. A wool plaid sport costume and a snappy little turban were worn with it.

A very pretty slim little girl, with dark eyes and hair, was wearing an accordian-plaited cape which was set on to a yoke elaborately embroidered in burnt orange. A small hat of navy, embroidered in the same color, completed the costume.

Veils were much in evidence. Many were in colors and had dots, and patterns of contrasting colors which were especially pretty when they were worn over the turbans.

It was the rich fur coat with its deep collar and cuffs, the fur trimmed costume and the hat trimmed with fur which was most in vogue.

CROWD MADE COLOR

Furs were in evidence because the chilly winds made them necessary. And furs hid stripes and plaids and checks and dots. The real color was hidden but the crowd itself made color.

And one of the distinctive features of a Shanghai race meeting is the crowd, with its color and its picturesque background. No where in the world does the racing devotee see the variety that characterises "the races" here. Men and women from every country and clime line the rails, crowd the grandstand, throng the lawns. Offices are closed, the banks enjoy a half-holiday, public officials and junior clerks must see the races.

And yesterday was the greatest of Shanghai race days.

DROP IN SUGAR

(U. S. Naval Radio)

Peking, Nov. 10.—The Foochow incident has been finally settled on the following terms:

(1) The Japanese Government will express its regret to China for the conduct of Japanese subjects.

(2) The Japanese Government will suitably punish the offending Japanese subjects.

(3) The Japanese Government will compensate the Chinese sufferers.

(4) Having received the note expressing Japanese regret, the Chinese Government will express its regret for the boycott which followed the incident.

Fengtien Tuchun Wants Chang Hsun To Head Kiangsu

To appoint the Monarchist, Chang Hsun, as Inspector-General of Kiangsu, Anhui and Kiangsi and name Chi Shih-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsu, is the decision of the Mukden military conference called by General Chang Tso-lin, according to the Chinese press. The conference was attended by representatives from Chihli, Chekiang, Hupeh, Kiangsi and Anhui.

Chang Tso-lin has delegated his henchman, Chang Chin-hsai to proceed to Paotingfu at once and approach Generals Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu with reference to these appointments in view of the opposition of General Wu against the move.

The Kiangsu Association is introducing a motion to pass a vote of lack of confidence in Chang Chien, the Nantungchow industrial magnate, who has expressed himself as favoring the appointment of Chi as the Kiangsu Tuchun in spite of the opposition of the people.

The motion is proposed by Dr. Huang Yen-pei, Vice-president of the Kiangsu Educational Association, Mr. Shen En-fu, resident director of the same association and a number of other prominent Shanghai Chinese.

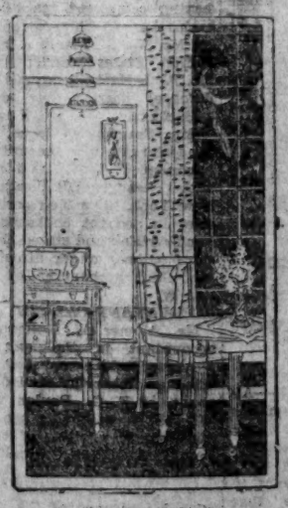
The Stately Homes of England



Have you ever wandered through one of those old Elizabethan Manors, of which England is so proud? Did you notice the black, lustrous panelling, doors and stairs? Did it not strike you as curious that the wooden beams in the outhouses had outlasted the stone of which the walls were built? The colour of the wood made you curious to know what stain had been used on it? "Time" imparted that wonderful tone to the wood, and all the base counterfeiters of the craftsmanship of a bygone age have never succeeded in producing an imitation which would deceive a babe. The Wood was Oak, the wood which we suggest you should use for your new floor or panelling.

WE SUPPLY OAK FOR FLOORING, WAINSCOTIG, PANELLING, ETC., ETC., KILN-DRIED AND QUALITY GUARANTEED

We give all orders personal attention. After you have placed your order with us, the flooring will be laid and all work carried out under the personal supervision of a foreign expert of the Company. This supervision costs you nothing and we prefer to do this for you.

Insist that all lumber for flooring and panelling for interior work bears the "Three Pines" Trade Mark, and the letters "KD" signifying kiln-dried, thus ensuring its perfect quality, and suitability for the severe climatic conditions of China.

JAPAN OFFERS TERMS TO CALL BACK SOLDIERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 10.—In reply to the Chinese note, demanding the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the Chientao and Hungchun regions, Mr. Obata, the Japanese Minister, yesterday submitted the following proposals to the Waichiaopu:

(1) A guarantee from the Chinese Government for the increase in strength of the troops in the Chientao and Hungchun regions.

(2) The distribution of sufficient troops among Hungchun, Lungchinchun, Chutszkai, Peisaokou and Toutaokou, or permission for the stationing of sufficient Japanese troops to maintain order.

(3) It is to be understood that in the event of further disorders after the withdrawal of the Japanese forces, Japan may send troops again to the affected districts.

(4) Provided the Chinese Government gives a definite guarantee for the fulfilment of these conditions, the Japanese troops are all to be withdrawn.

Mr. Obata remarked that during the recent incidents many Japanese subjects had been killed, and the Japanese Government did not want a repetition of such incidents. He then requested the Chinese Government to instruct Chang Tso-lin to maintain order in future, adding that, while one Fengtien division remained in Peking Chang Tso-lin failed to maintain order in Manchuria. It was owing to such unsound arrangements, he added, that these disasters occurred, and this view was shared by all the Foreign Ministers in Peking.

FOLES IN MOVE AGAINST TRAFFIC, GERMANS CHARGE

(U. S. Naval Radio)

The following dispatch was picked up in Shanghai yesterday by the U. S. Navy Radio Station from the German Wireless.

Nauen, Germany, Nov. 10.—New difficulties have arisen regarding free transit in the Polish Corridor by the demand of the Polish government that all trains passing through the Corridor must be provided with German engines, contrary to the terms of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Polish demand that these engines be handed over to them would cripple German traffic which is already severely handicapped.

Urga Attacks Are Laid To Mongols Seeking Autonomy

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 10.—Chu Chi-hsiang, telegraphing from Urga on November 8 states that Russian bandits have recently concentrated in northern Mongolia and that the commander of the Red forces at Irkutsk intended to send an expeditionary force against these bandits.

In a further message of the same date, Chu Chi-hsiang states that he has ascertained that the hostile movements in Urga were an attempt by the Mongols to restore their autonomy. The attempt was, however, discovered in time, and the Hufukhtu was placed under supervision, and ordered to disband the Mongolian troops who were co-operating with the enemy.

The invaders were dispersed on November 5 but remained in strength on the Pilichi River. Chu Chi-hsiang adds that he has detailed troops to protect the Americans at Urga, and appointed a special delegate to attend to their safety.

REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVE

Peking, Nov. 10.—Gen. Chen Yi, telegraphing from Pangchang on the 8th inst., says he has received a communication from Prince Shang and others at Urga, stating that enemy reinforcements, numbering 2,000, and consisting principally of Japanese, have arrived in the Urga district, and are making ready to attack. Gen. Chen Yi has asked for immediate reinforcements.

Another telegram from Gen. Chen Yi, dated November 7, said Chinese reinforcements from Kiakta had arrived at Urga on the 3rd, and took part in an engagement on the following day, in which the enemy were routed and fled in a northeasterly direction. Gen. Chen Yi left Pangchang for Urga on the 9th.

Okuma Advises Japan To Remain Cool As To California Situation

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 9.—The Foreign Affairs Advisory Council and the Cabinet yesterday considered the question of anti-Japanese legislation in California and the counter-proposal of recognition of racial equality. It is reported that Japan may submit the matter to the League of Nations.

Marquis Okuma, the ex-Premier, speaking at a meeting of the Japan Emigration Association yesterday, expressed wonder that Japan should remain cool in face of the California legislation, which would have vital consequences for Japan's national welfare. Propaganda was necessary declared the Marquis, but it must be judicious, for indiscreet propaganda was harmful to international intercourse and no better than Machiavelism.

FEARS FOR FUTURE

The ex-Premier went on to say that he feared that anti-Japanism might endanger Japan's relations not only with the State of California, but with other countries. He deplored what he characterised as "popular ignorance of international diplomacy." He said that the Japanese Government must not remain silent in face of discrimination, otherwise Canada, Australasia and others would imitate California.

The Marquis referred to the resolution passed by 800 American delegates at the Sunday School Convention in favor of racial equality, a report of which, he said, was undoubtedly circulated all over the world, and expressed astonishment that it had not been featured in the Japanese press.

ADVOCATES PROPAGANDA

"We cannot wait for the results of the efforts of pro-Japanese Americans," he declared. "Consequently propaganda on a large scale is necessary."

The meeting voted a resolution declaring the California legislation to be "glaringly opposed to justice," and urging the importance of properly educating emigrants by means of special text books for use both in schools in Japan and in schools of the countries where emigrants reside.

Morris May Remain In U.S. To Settle Japanese Question

(U. S. Naval Radio)

Washington, Nov. 8.—Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador at Washington, and Mr. Roland S. Morris, the American Ambassador to Japan, will confer at the State Department tomorrow prior to the latter's departure for Philadelphia on six days' leave of absence.

It is not expected that Mr. Morris will return to Japan on the expiration of his leave as it is believed that his services will be further required at Washington in connection with the Japan-American negotiations.

There are indictaions that the tentative draft of the new treaty contemplates an extension of the privileges of Americans in Japan besides defining the rights of Japanese in the United States.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Baron Shidehara the Japanese minister to America and Ambassador Roland E. Morris of the state department, resumed their conferences today in an effort to seek some basis on an agreement defining the Japanese rights in the United States. Some more important topics of discussion were a proposed treaty to cover the equalisation of the rights given to Japanese as compared to those given other aliens, and the stopping of all immigration with no provision of naturalisation.

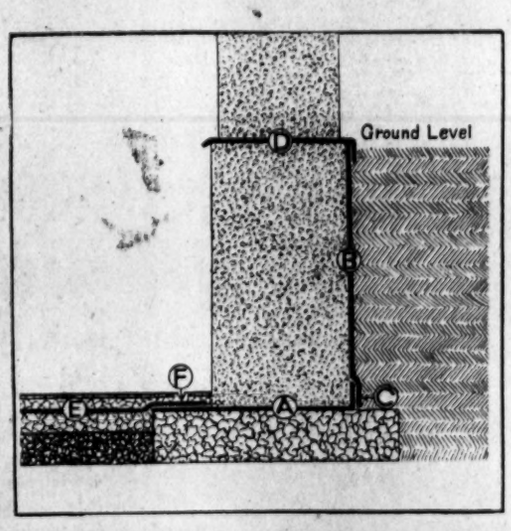
How To Fight Moisture

(A series of suggestions to building owners, factory superintendents, transportation companies, commercial houses, contractors and architects.

Suggestion No. 1—Foundation and Basement



Foundation walls and basement floors of all buildings should be rendered absolutely moisture-proof. The excessive moisture in China spoils thousands of dollars in goods and property by working its way through the foundation and basement, and many people suffer ill effects due to dampness.

To prevent the moisture from entering these places is not an expensive nor a difficult proposition. Although every building requires a specification to meet its condition, the following method will prove satisfactory in most cases.

In this diagram, the heavy black lines A B D E indicate layers of Certain-teed Dampcourse, laid and cemented below, around and on top of the wall, also between the sub-concrete and the finished floors, thus forming a complete water-proof basement. C and F indicate the cemented overlaps.

As Certain-teed Dampcourse is not only water and damp-proof, but also acid-proof and odorless, it is superior to other materials for the purpose designated.

'Y' HAS CONCERT TONIGHT TO AID FAMINE RELIEF

Classic Program To Be Given At Olympic Beginning At 9:15 O'clock

LOCAL CONCERNS ASSIST

Olympic, B.A.T., British Flower Shop, Tram And Moutrie's Help Cause

In aid of the North China Famine Relief Fund, the Y. M. C. A. will give a concert at the Olympic Theater tonight at 9:15 o'clock.

The artists who will appear gratis on the program will be Miss M. B. Olive, soprano; Mrs. Frederick Tillson, contralto; Mr. R. C. Treman, bass, of Nanking; Mr. Brunelli, tenor; Mr. Selivanoff, baritone; Mr. Siroldo, violinist and Mr. Harry Ore, pianist.

The artists will be accompanied by Miss Smith of McTyeire School, Mr. E. G. Tewksbury, Mrs. Brunelli and Mr. Ore.

THEATER DONATED

The program is in the charge of Mr. C. G. Ruby of the Y. M. C. A. and will include violin, piano and vocal selections. Tickets may be secured at Moutrie's or the Y. M. C. A. or at the door for $5, $3, $2 and $1.

The management of the Olympic will not charge for the use of the theater. The B. A. T. is giving its newspaper advertising space for the concert while the Tramway Co. is giving the concert free advertising. The British Flower Shop is decorating the theater without charge.

Miss Olive is head of the department of voice culture of McTyeire School for Girls. Her reputation as a soprano is made and she appears in five solos.

Mrs. Frederick Tillson of Chicago, is well known as Miss Genevieve Schrader, leading contralto of the Chicago Opera Company. Her tone production and interpretation has won for her admirers all over the United States.

Mr. Selivanoff, baritone, was formerly with the Moscow and Petrograd Opera Company and needs no introduction to Shanghai musical circles.

ARTISTS TAKE PART

Mr. Brunelli is a tenor of rare ability. From the artistic stand point, his work is of the very highest type.

Mr. Treman of Nanking, former leader of the Cornell glee club, has a rich, full bass voice of exceptional quality and always delights his audience.

Mr. Siroldo, former member of the Moscow Trio, is leading violinist of the Municipal Band and his attainments will be splendidly demonstrated in his numbers this evening.

Mr. Harry Ore is recognised as a master of the piano. He is well and favorably known in Shanghai. His selections have been well chosen for this program and will appeal to all.

The Asia Banking Corporation filed answer in the United States Court yesterday to the claim for Tls. 1,506 entered against them by one Phoo Chin-wah who alleges that he incurred that amount of loss in consequence of an exchange transaction. The plaintiff claims that G. $10,000-entrusted to the defendants was sold without his permission at a figure which entailed the loss. The bank declares that the amount was disposed of at the request of an employe of the plaintiff's who was handling the deal for him.

New Weakness In Pound Sterling Rate

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 9.—A fresh spasm of weakness has developed in European currencies. The pound sterling closed on the New York Exchange at $3.35, which is the lowest since February and makes the sovereign worth only 13-9 in New York.

The Continental Exchanges are also demoralised. The franc rose sharply to 58.50 to the pound sterling, which is attributed chiefly to offerings from New York and also to the reaction of trade activity in France.

The lire is now 100 to the pound while marks are five a penny.

Britain Is Against Mandate Powers For League Assembly

Will Not Instruct Delegates To Propose That Geneva Body Act

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—In the House of Commons today, in reply to Mr. J. R. Clynes, Mr. Lloyd George said that the Government did not intend to instruct the British delegates to the forthcoming Assembly of the League of Nations to propose that the right to determine the terms of mandates should repose in the members of the League. The Government thought that the matter should be dealt with in accordance with the terms of the Convenant.

Sir J. D. Rees asked if the Assembly at Geneva could alter the mandates, Mr. Lloyd George, replying, pointed out that nothing could be done except by unanimous decision of the Council of the League, which meant that nothing could be done without the consent of the Powers concerned.

Sores from Wrist to Elbow

"Completely Healed"

Our portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17, Mill Lane, Kilmarnock, Scotland, who writes: "My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes: "I have had no return of my complaint; my arm is still as sound as a bell and never troubles me in the least."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious. Of all dealers. Ask for and see you get— him and over the finish line with "open water" between. Tatouillard, defying the challenge of Co-insurance in the last furlong, came flying home third by three lengths. King's Cross, Silver Streak and Hightide, favored by many, finished in the ruck. Harlow blew up.

DAY WAS DOUR

It was a far from inspiring day for racing. Dark, threatening clouds overhung the Course all morning and a chill wind blew from the northeast, quartering the racers and rendering the establishment of record time practically out of the question. Rain fell during the tiffin interval and continue to dash drops into the enclosure during the afternoon.

The track itself was in none-too-good condition, having been softened by two days' showers and badly cut up by the large fields of starters which have marked this year's events. Had English or American thoroughbreds been racing, instead of sure-footed little China ponies, there is little doubt that there would have been more than one bad spill during the day.

BIG CROWD PLUCKY

Despite all of the adverse conditions, the Race Club's stands were well-filled long before the classic was scheduled to be decided; while around the course, on Bubbling Well Road and Thibet Road, thousands of dwellers in the Settlement, unable or unwilling to buy tickets for the stands hung across the moat and cheered the gaily-clad riders as they swept by to victory or defeat in the events of the day.

Mr. Crokam and Mr. Moller, each with two firsts, shared the riders' honors of the day with Mr. Hill. Messrs. Stewart, Knight, Dalgliesh and Ezra were the other successful ones. Mr. Heard, regarded as one of Shanghai's most accomplished and resourceful riders, had few mounts upon which he could exhibit his prowess. Mr. Bremner was equally unfortunate.

A POPULAR VICTORY

Mr. Isaac Ezra scored one of the most popular victories of the day when he rode Nyanza to victory in the sixth race (Sub-Griffins Consolation Cup). This gallant little pony, piloted by Mr. Ezra ran two remarkable races on Monday last and was unfortunate enough to lose a chance at the Champions by a short head.

Racing for the Royal Navy and Subscription Griffin ..es, Nyanza ran a spectacular heat with Mr. Elkayem's ..luce against a field of twenty-other starters. Champions Sweep Winner Garners Only $167,294.40

Twenty-six persons are not worried about the high cost of living this morning. Twenty-three of them have one thousand hard, cold, round dollars each.

Each of the 26 drew a pony that started in this mile-and-a-quarter jaunt that has kept Shanghai, Hankow, Ningpo and divers other localities interested from May fifth last until yesterday afternoon at four o'clock—and breathless for fifteen minutes afterwards.

But the other three.

One won $167,294.40. He or she (as the case may be) plucked the number that was pinned on the back of one Billy Hill.

Another copped $47,798.40. Kenny Brand saw to that.

And the lucky bird (or birdess) who caught the ticket bearing the mystic numbers which Tatouillard carried by the post—$23,899.20 to that person.

All on a horse race. The Shanghai Champions. It was the biggest sweep in the history of racing here. The third largest in the world.

And 26 helped.

The rest of us will go back to work until the May meeting.

SHANGHAI WINS INITIAL MATCH ON THE COURTS

Pott And Ollerdessen Defeat Hongkong Pair In Fast Tennis Exhibition

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Hongkong, November 10.—Shanghai won the first match of the Interport tennis tourney this afternoon, when Messrs. W. S. A. ("Billy") Pott and H. B. ("Harry-Boy") Ollerdessen defeated Messrs. Ivanovitch and Loo, of the Crown Colony, in a hard-fought four-set match, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

The Shanghai players were slow in starting, Messrs. Lo and Ivanovitch having to extend themselves scarcely at all in order to annex the first set of the afternoon.

Thereafter, however, "Bill" Pott's knee got "oiled up" and the Shanghaisters proceeded to annex two sets in rapid succession. In the fourth set the Hongkong players led by four games to two when Pott and Ollerdessen, playing brilliant tennis, braced and took the next four games and the match.

The Shanghai pair was by far the steadier throughout the play, and consistently outvolleyed their opponents. A large gallery of spectators was on hand for the match.

On Saturday next Mr. Pott will meet Mr. Loo in the first of the singles matches. On Monday Mr. Tanaka will meet a Hongkong player (not yet selected) while Messrs. Carnavarro and Pott will probably play a Hongkong doubles team.

French School Girls Defeat Cathedral

Junior Basketball Team From French Concession Win, 16-0

The junior girls basketball team from the French Municipal School defeated their sisters from the Cathedral School yesterday afternoon by a score of 16-0 in a game which manifested the superiority of the little ladies from the French Concession. Four baskets in the first period gave the French School girls an eight-point lead and the count was duplicated in the second half.

Ten of the 16 points scored by the winners were garnered by Miss Beattie White, Miss Lillian Landille netting the other three baskets. Mary Hooley was the bright star in the Cathedral School firmament.

The summary:

French School.—Lillian Landille lf, Beattie White rf, Evelyn Cockburn c, Jean Westaway c, Babara Silby lg, Olive Crane rg.

Cathedral.—Viriginia Athinson rg, Barbara Atkinson lg, Ruth Johns c, Mary Hooley c, Doris Tippin rf, Doris Cheetham lf.

Referee—Miss Thompson. Umpire—Miss Brodnhall. Goals from field Miss White, 5; Miss Landille 3.

SINGAPORE CRICKET TEAM DEFEATS HONGKONG; GIVES SHANGHAI ANOTHER CHANCE

Straits Settlement Eleven Noses Out Crown Colonists By 35 Runs—"Irrepressibles" To Play Winners Today And Tomorrow—Expect To Even Up The Scores

By "Boundary"

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Hongkong, Nov. 10.—The Singapore cricket eleven today succeeded in defeating Hongkong, which had previously conquered the Shanghai "Irrepressibles." The score at the end of today's play—the second of two—was 35 runs to the good for the Straits Settlements team.

Singapore was fortunate enough to win the toss, going first to bat under a fiery sun, which contributed a somewhat responsive wicket.

The feature of Hongkong's second inning was the bowling of Hennesy for Singapore. He sent down 28 overs without change, for an average of 11 maidens, 5 wickets, 55 runs.

The "Irrepressibles" are confident of their ability to beat Singapore in the two-day match which begins tomorrow morning. Everyone of us is fit and we believe that our fielding and batting will prove all-sufficient to defeat the southerners.

In this case the match between "The Winners" and "The Rest," due for settlement on Saturday, will resolve itself into a contest between two picked teams of Interporters, and the 1920 championship will necessarily be declared a three-way draw.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Nov. 10.—The Singapore v. Hongkong Interport Cricket match was continued this morning, Hongkong who had lost 6 wickets over-night, were soon all out for 161 (Major Edwards 25, Lieut. Franks not out 26, R. O. Bird O.) Singapore's bowling was deadly.

Singapore's second innings had a most unpropitious start, six wickets falling for 60 runs (E. J. Riches, A. E. Holmes Brown, and A. A. Claxton being among the victims).

The innings closed for 99. V. E. H. Rhodes making the top score of 42 not out. Capt. Davies took six of the wickets.

L. A. Tucker having hurt his knee yesterday, this morning F. H. J. Caryll fielded as substitute.

In their second venture Hongkong were dismissed for 159, towards which the chief contributors were Capt. Davies, 28; T. E. Pearce, 22; and W. C. D. Turner, 21.

Singapore thus won the match by 35 runs. The captains agreed to play extra time in order to bring the game to a finish. Scores: Singapore, 1st inns., 256; 2nd inns., 99. Hongkong, 1st inns., 161; 2nd inns., 159.

The Governor gave a dinner yesterday to the three teams and the President of the Hongkong C. C.

Navy Footballers Defeat Shanghai

A fine, fast game of football took place between the Navy and the Shanghai Football Club yesterday afternoon on the Nanyang College ground, resulting in a win for the Navy by five goals to three.

It was the superior combination of the sailor boys that lead to the undoing of the Club. When the whistle called for "lemons" the score was 3-1 in favor of the Navy. Each side scored two goals in the second half.

The Club tried out some of their new material in the game; but, with the exception of Pilcher, it was disappointing. The player named scored two of the Club's goals. The remaining one was put through by Laurie-Smith. For the Navy the center half and the wing men were especially good.

Mr. Fulton refereed the game with his accustomed skill.

For Better, For Worse. By W. B. Maxwell. Dodd, Mead and Co.

It is a long time since Mr. Maxwell has given us so absorbingly interesting a novel as this new one, which he calls "For Better, For Worse." With the exception of one minor incident—the presence of Mrs. Kemptown at Uncle Derek's dinner—the book is absolutely logical, entirely convincing. Its characters are real flesh-and-blood men and women, brought face to face with a problem which is unhappily only too commonplace—the problem of an ill-assorted marriage, which ends in misery. The novel is not so much an attack as an illustration, dramatic and powerful, never descending to the sensational or hysterical, of the inconsistencies and inquities of the divorce laws of England.

The average novelist, wishing to write upon that universal theme, an unhappy marriage, only too often evades the difficult matter of explaining how that marriage came to exist in the first place. Not so Mr. Maxwell. He introduces us to exquisite Claire Gilmour, the girl of 20, convent-bred, completely innocent and completely ignorant, much the youngest of a family whose other members, while kindly disposed toward her, felt that it would, on the whole, be a very good thing when she was married and out of the way. He then shows us Claire's first meeting with Roderick Vaughan, and makes plain his attraction for a girl as inexperienced and as sweet-natured as Claire, whose very fineness and innocence are among the strongest of the forces which bring about the marriage which wrecks her life. Even the way she throws herself into her lover's power is rendered plausible by the circumstances and by her own nature. Nor is Roddy, when first he crosses Claire's path a mere ordinary villain, a deliberate, cold-blooded fortune hunter. He wants her money, it is true, but he is very much in love with her, according to his understanding of the word. He is simply a coarse-bred, unscrupulous made animal, physically brave, carelessly good-natured and debonair so long as he has his own way, utterly brutal the moment the slightest check or hindrance is placed upon any of his desires. With money he is at the same time lavish greedy and mean. Scarcely realising himself the difference between an honorable and a dishonorable action, he becomes an easy prey to cheats cleverer than himself. Yet he is capable of being terribly anxious during the hours when Claire is in danger; only his compunction and anxiety are alike short-lived. Mr. Maxwell has dissected him pitilessly; did the novel contain no other worth-while chapter than that one which begins with the description of Roddy's "emotional anxiety" over Claire's peril, and passes on to the scene which brought about the departure of Pope, the lady's maid, the book would be a notable one. But it holds many another, as witness the very first, which shows us a typical morning in the Gilmour household.

It is a long and leisurely novel; step by step Mr. Maxwell follows Claire along the road which leads her from her mother's house and her sheltered girlhood to the divorce court, and her exit thence, when a common woman flings a vile name at her. "It was the verdict of the gutter, it was the verdict of the world, on a perfectly pure and good woman immolated by our cruel and stupid law." At no point along this road does the author weaken or falter; each event is the logical outcome of these preceding it. Fate is against Claire; but only once does Fate intervene in any especially striking way. With that single exception—the death of clear-sighted, generous-hearted Aunt Agnes—they are small incidents which bring about her destruction, a phrase carelessly spoken, a nurse's overfatigue, a landlady's wish to economise. And more than once, it is some good deed, some bit of kindness on Claire's part, which weaves the web of evil more closely about her.

The action of the story opens some ten years ago, and it closes at the present time, so that the novel covers the period of the war. But though the great conflict is by no means ignored, it is all sub-ordinated to its effect upon Claire, and upon Claire's life. She is a notable figure, a woman whose fineness we are not merely told about, but shown, so that we see and realise it for ourselves. Not a faultless woman, not always a courageous woman, but a very real one, she wins and holds our sympathy from the first page to the last. The people, the environment in which she moves, are all admirably adapted to set off her character, yet each person who crosses Mr. Maxwell's stage is an individual, and there are some very clever satirical moments in the book, as when Claire's ultra-conventional relatives play their parts in the tragedy of her marriage and subsequent suit for divorce, her mother, Mrs. Gilmour, being especially well done. And while the novel is an attack on the English divorce laws, the verdict as it is finally pronounced might have come from an American jury quite as well as from an English one, and would have had much the same effect on the relations of Claire and Roddy had it been given in New York as it did when delivered in London.

One thing about this new novel cannot, in view of its subject, be too strongly emphasised, and that one thing is this: it is absolutely clean. Mr. Maxwell shirks nothing; Claire's position, Claire's disillusionment, Claire's mental condition as a woman whose husband is repeatedly unfaithful to her, and who has come to look with loathing upon the man who is nevertheless her lord and master, is made entirely clear. The book is certainly not milk for babes; but it is entirely free from the taint of willing men and women, who realise that upon the strength and stability of that bond between man and woman which is marriage, rests, in the ultimate analysis, all the well-being of the race. Admirable in its construction, sane and realistic in its development, intensely interesting from beginning to end, this new novel by W. B. Maxwell is a thoughtful, conscientious and notable book, a book worthy of the man who wrote "In Cotton Wool" and "Mrs. Thompson."

THE CHINESE COAT

The Chinese Coat. By Jennette Lee. Charles Scribner's Sons.

The symbolism behind Mrs. Lee's unusual novel is not so obvious as to make the story attract in any sense of the word, but it is sufficiently emphasised to add a deeper note than the theme would appear to warrant on a cursory retelling. Threaded through the entire narrative is the desire of Eleanor Moore for the magnificent Chinese coat, strangely embroidered and curiously fashioned, which she sees one day in a store. Eleanor first lays eyes on the coat when she and her husband are far from rich. Richard Moore is willing to get it for her even at the penalty of financial sacrifice to himself, for he sees how strangely the desire for it has woven itself into her life. But when he goes back for it he finds the price raised. Later the coat has disappeared.

So the adventure of married life goes on with the two. Wealth comes to them and children. The children grow up and life continually broadens out. But through it all at frequent times the dream of the Chinese coat comes back to Eleanor. She knows that the possession of it would be the final fulfilment of her life. So the coat stands for that one thing that is always just beyond the grasp, the one thing that would make existence a completed whole. In all our lives there is the feeling that something is lacking, something that steadily beckons and glimmers before the dreaming vision. To Eleanor this thing typifies itself in the Chinese coat.

It is late in life when Eleanor and Richard hear that the coat, or one exactly like it, is somewhere in the interior of China. For them it is the most natural thing in the world to leave all their duties and depart for a new and strange land in search of the thing that has been in their minds for so long. What happens to them in China, whether or not Eleanor gets the Chinese coat, and the eventual disposition of their lives, completes a story that is remarkably compact and sustained in interest throughout.

The tale is one that is new to readers of Mrs. Lee's work. Throughout it is woven the glimmering web of poetry, and this is due partly to the theme itself and partly to the simplicity of the press. One feels upon reading the story that Mrs. Lee possesses unsuspected talents. The idealism and symbolic qualities of "The Chinese Coat" are never in doubt. It is a book to be read.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given your physician know of what to your children unless you are it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

SAME OLD STORY; CAN'T WIN A JIT;

from a flock of whales. And anyway, it had just about started to rain.

Still, somebody is always taking the joy out of life. In the murmurings of the crowd we heard somebody mention that "The Oriole" was a very fine pony, with piebald markings and four legs, and a reputation for being able to agitate the latter in very distinguished style.

SEE THE BIRDIES

So we went back into the parimutuel web and took an apprehensive survey.

There wasn't any tag hung up for the Oriole, but there was a tag hung up for a creature labelled "The Heron," and another suspended for "The Hawk,"—and right away we began to feel what is technically known as "qualms" in the region of the breast pocket.

And the symptoms proved correct.

What's the idea anyway? Does a man have to be a zoologist to go out to this saucer on Bubbling Well Road and come away smiling?

And anyway, with three birds in the line-up covering three different species—or two different species, if you insist—what's the logical conclusion when one of the beasts is the symbol of everything victorious?

Who'd pick a gangle-shanked wader like a heron to pull out ahead on a dry day like yesterday? Or a second rater like a hawk to stand any chance of winning out against the emblem of the U.S.A.?

I ask you!

NOT A HIGH FLYER

I don't know whether to blame it on the war, or the League of Nations, or the stewards—but anyway this Eagle was about as short-winged a bird as ever tried to get off the ground. If he did any soaring it ought to be spelled in a different way.

Well, it appears that, on account of the darkness, or having lost the way, The Eagle failed to come home; and probably there's a heartwracked mother who sat up all night in her domicile, abaft the Widow's Monument, with a light in the window waiting for the prodigal.

FAR BE IT FROM US

Don't gather the idea that we're sore about it.

If a horse with a name like "The Hawk" can hang the black drapings on another quadruped called "The Eagle," the only thing we've got to say is that the Audobon Society ought to be called in to conduct an investigation.

Aside from that we're not interested.

And anyway—those nineteen azure ducats will make a very vivid addition to the fresco we've started in the room that we've decided to retain until next Spring.

What could a man possibly do with $167,294.40 anyway?—what with the Volstead Act and the new Income Tax and the present price of lingerie?

'Poorer The Woman, Heavier The Lunch'

London, September 15.—"The poorer the woman the more solid is the lunch she orders," declares the proprietor of a popular restaurant. "A girl who earns a small salary will usually order a suet pudding on a hot day instead of a fruit salad. Generally, when these women have large lunches we know that they are going to have a very scanty supper in the evening. Some women 'go a bust' one day and order a large lunch, and then take sandwiches to the office on the next. There are few, however, who have meals of the 'bun and milk' variety nowadays."

Dog Of High Degree Quarantined Like Cur

London, September 25.—British Prime Minister Lloyd George, who recently returned from a brief holiday at Lucerne to the cares of state in London, brought back with him a very fine St. Bernard dog. However, the latter had hardly been in his new home, No. 10 Downing Street long enough to pick out the softest spot to sleep on when cruel officials swooped down and took him away for a six-month's sojourn in quarantine at Mitcham according to the Government regulations for immigrant dogs.

Miss Megan Lloyd George, the Premier's daughter, makes frequent visits to the quarantine station to ascertain how the dog is getting along and to make sure that he is well cared for.

The Premier himself visited the place Friday when motoring to his Surrey country seat.

THE WORLD WAR

AND YOU CANNOT FORGET THE WORK OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Since the war ended two years ago this month its personnel has been greatly reduced, but its organization has become more efficient than ever and will concentrate upon peace-time service and disaster relief.

Over one hundred great disasters have called upon the Red Cross in recent years and found it ready. The help has been quickly given. It has been skilfully administered. It has shown no discrimination of race or creed.

It has brought medical, surgical and nursing help to sick and wounded. It has provided quick provision for the destitute.

It has distributed half a million dollars worth of supplies to three hundred hospitals in Chinathis summer.

The only way in which the Red Cross can meet the emergencies of fire, flood, earthquake, epidemic and famine, is by having the whole people behind it.

Commencing on Armistice Day November 11th and continuing until Thanksgiving day November 25th, the American Red Cross will give you an opportunity to become a member and one dollar and a half Mex. is all it costs for one year.

The man, woman or child who joins the Red Cross and pays one-dollar fifty Mex. is as much a member as anyone might be who paid a million dollars.

This is not a campaign for money, but for memberships.

Wear the 1921 button of the organization before which the world stands in thrilled and loving admiration.

Still the greatest mother in the world.

Boulon Case Adjourned Until Saturday Morning

covered Mr. Boulon had purchased the $20,000 gold contract?

A—I presume he was.

Q—And you were under Mr. Coleman?

A—Yes.

Q—I believe your office in the building was next door to his and you had to pass into his office to get into yours?

A—Part of the time that was so.

Q—And you saw fit to speak to Mr. Boulon about this $20,000 gold contract but not to Mr. Coleman?

A—I cannot say now positively whether Mr. Coleman knew of it or not, but I think he did.

Q—Knowing of this transaction and speaking to Mr. Boulon about it because of its size, did it occur to you to keep your eyes on the books and accounts of the Company to see if Mr. Boulon repeated that sort of business?

A—Naturally one would have that thought.

Q—Did you do that?

A—As far as possible, yes. As far as my duties permitted I analysed and went through the books but as I have many times stated during the summer months I was unable to do that.

Mr. Arthur Jones testified that he has been an accountant with Messrs. Gaston, Williams and Wigmore since the first of April, two years ago, and prior to that he was six years with the Standard Oil Company.

Q—You were chief accountant for G. W. and W.?

A—I was.

Q—Were you the chief accountant covering the period from Jan. 1 of this year until recently through June?

A—I was.

Q—And July?

A—Yes.

Q—Now you heard Mr. Green testify here that certain exchange contracts were not recorded in the books at the exact dates the transactions took place because he only received those contracts from you on the dates when he did record them and that he got his instructions to enter them in the books from you.

A—That is so.

Q—Why was that?

A—Because I myself did not receive those exchange contracts until the whole transaction had been completed. That is, the purchase made and the sale offsetting that purchase had been concluded.

Q—Who did you get those contracts from in these instances where you say you did not receive them yourself until the transaction was completed?

A—Some of them from Mr. Boulon.

Q—That was not the regular course of business, was it, Mr. Jones?

A—It was not.

Q—What would have been the regular course of business?

A—Those contracts as purchased should have come in to me either on the same day or within a very short space of time after the contract being completed with the broker.

Q—And they did not?

A—No, not in every instance.

Q—I show you Exhibit QQ and call your attention to certain notations near the left hand margin, "Yea Kong Yang, F.G.B."

Q—Whose handwriting is that?

A—I should say it is Mr. Boulon's. I should accept it as Mr. Boulon's.

Q—On this sale represented by the contract Exhibit QQ to whom was the profit credited?

A—Presumably to Mr. Boulon's account.

Q—Why to his account?

A—Or in this instance seeing as Yea Kong Yang appears here it may have been credited to Yea Kong Yang.

Q—Do you know who eventually got the profits?

A—I cannot say that without reference to the records.

Q—According to the evidence in this case that sale applied against purchases represented by contracts 500, 514, 526, 527, 540, 549, 558, 562, Exhibits RR to ZZ? Is that so?

A—The profits would be allotted in three different directions there.

Q—Do you know what actually was done? Did the company actually pay to Yea Kong Yang, and to Yung Tai Chong? How was it eventually paid out by the Company?

A—In the form of a check drawn in the name of Yea Kong Yang.

Q—For how much?

A—I cannot be sure of my figures, but I think it was Taels 12,250.54.

Q—Who drew that check?

A—I issued the instructions to have it drawn to the cashier.

Q—Why did you issue instructions?

A—By request of Mr. Boulon, the manager.

Q—Why in favor of Yea Kong Yang when a part of the total amount of that check had been credited to each of three different persons?

A—Because at the time I was requested to draw the check I did not have the details of the transaction in front of me but I knew that part of it was applicable to Yea Kong Yang and as it was necessary to get this transaction through in a very short space of time to admit of the completion of what it was supposed to be drawn for I had to give verbal instructions and then leave it for adjustment at some future time.

Q—Did Mr. Boulon say anything about the person to whom the check should be drawn?

A—He may have mentioned that it be drawn to one of the Chinese, or he may have instructed me to draw it to Yung Tai Chong. At any rate, it was by his instructions the check was so drawn.

Q—Was it by his instructions it was drawn in favor of a Chinese?

A—Yes.

Q—To whom was the check delivered by you?

A—To Mr. Boulon, the manager.

Q—Is that the last you saw of it?

A—I believe it was.

Q—I show you Exhibits JJ and II, and Exhibits LL and KK representing purchase and sale of exchange and two checks showing the amounts bought and received in connection with that. What is the profit on that?

A—Profit Taels 969.89.

Q—Do you recall this transaction?

A—I do not recall each particular transaction, but I could outline the procedure of it. What would happen in the ordinary course of events.

Q—I call your attention to notations in pencil on these contracts "For Mr. Sung. See F. G. B." Whose handwriting are those in?

A—Mr. Boulon's.

Q—Why was that put there?

A—To convey the impression that it was for Mr. Sung's account that this exchange had been bought and sold.

Q—To whose account eventually were the profits put, do you know?

A—Mr. F. G. Boulon's account in all probability.

But on the profits coming in it may have been necessary—I would not call to mind who Mr. Sung was and I may have asked Mr. Boulon how he wanted the profits disposed of.

Q—Do you know why those Chinese names were written on there by Mr. Boulon? What the purpose of it was?

A—I do not know why but I think it was put there for camouflage.

Q—Did Mr. Boulon ever say anything to that effect to you?

A—Not in a direct way.

Q—About when did you have any such conversation as near as you can remember?

A—Anywhere within the period from March 1 during the course of these transactions being entered into.

Q—What was the substance of the conversation?

Mr. Haskell I object. I want what was said.

Q—Give it as near as possible.

A—At times I have had occasion to ask Mr. Boulon what these purchases and sales were, on whose account they were for and he has told me "Oh, credit my account. It is for Sung or Chang," or "Put it to my account." That has been the whole transaction in a nut shell practically.

Court: This particular one or all of them you have referred to?

A—I would not say this one or any particular one.

Court: Any one that showed profit?

A—Yes.

Q—Are you familiar with these contracts before the Court here?

A—I am quite familiar with them.

Q—And in the ten counts of the information there are ten different items alleged to have been embezzled by Mr. Boulon and the evidence points to their being the profits on exchange transactions made by the firm.

A—Yes.

Q—Now you say in a number of these instances he told you when he asked you to credit him on the books that it was for Sung or some other Chinese name, but to be credited to him.

A—In some instances, yes.

Q—Why did he thus say it was for Sung or some other Chinese as the case may be?

A—I do not know why he would say it.

Q—Is there any reason for saying it?

A—Not to my knowledge.

Q—I show you Exhibit FF and GG. Who got the profit on that transaction?

A—I cannot say who got the profit on this.

Q—Now if this is proved in evidence here to have been one of the instances where the profits were drawn out in the check for Taels 12,250.54 who got the profits?

A—I do not know who got the profits.

Q—I call your attention to Government's Exhibit QQ with marginal note Yea Kong Yang F. G. B. Sale of £15,000, what does that indicate?

A—It indicates that there has been a sale of £15,000 made to the Asia Bank.

Q—The contract indicates that but what does the notation on it, Yea Kong Yang F. G. B. indicate?

A—That the sale was purported to be for Yea Kong Yang's account.

Q—Now what contracts were actually sold out in order to make up total amount of £15,000 covered by that contract of sale?

A—Balances held on a lot of purchases which had been previously made for the company's account.

Q—At that time did Yea Kong Yang have with G. W. & W. a purchase of £15,000? And if he did why was this £15,000 sold by the contract marked QQ not made against Yea Kong Yang's purchase of that amount?

A—I could not say whether Yea Kong Yang had a purchase, but from the exhibit here it does not appear that he had.

Q—The fact then that this sale was made against the purchase indicated by the Exhibits from RR to ZZ shows that Yea Kong Yang did not have the purchase of that amount on the books of the Company.

Mr. Haskell objected to his leading. Why not tell the witness what it shows and ask him if this is not so?

Q—When you have there a sale of £15,000 with a notation "Yea Kong Yang F. G. B." and a lot of other contracts shown by Exhibits RR to ZZ, one of them marked "Sung Chong Ho Kee," and one marked "against indents" and one marked "For Sung," the one for Sung being £20,000 what does it indicate to you, the balance of them having no transactions, and all of them being purchased by G. W. & W.?

A—It indicates to me that this sale was offset against balance of purchases still open against the Exhibits RR to ZZ.

Q—Irrespective of Yea Kong Yang?

A—Part of which may have belonged to Yea Kong Yang or having been credited under instructions from Mr. Boulon.

Q—Now what was the fact about the credit?

A—The facts show that Mr. Boulon handed in the sales contract for £15,000 and the purchase contract for £20,000 and gave instructions to have the credits credited to Yea Kong Yang. Now instead of using the exact £15,000 purchased to offset the £15,000 sold there was a lot of small balances on the Company's books, purchases, which we wanted to clean up so utilised £15,000 out of those balances to offset this purchase and credited Yea Kong Yang's account with the profits between the £15,000 which were supposed to be sold for his account and the £15,000 purchased.

Q—You have heard Yea Kong Yang's accountant here in Court say that they had no open exchange with G. W. & W. that they did not order that sale, that they did not receive any part of the profits?

A—Yes.

Q—Then what have you to say about this sale of £15,000 with a pencil notation thereon?

A—I can only say that it was for Mr. Boulon's account and that Yea Kong Yang was simply a camouflage idea.

Q—If the evidence in this case shows that the profits in each and every one of these transactions was credited to Mr. Boulon's account, by whose direction was that credit made?

A—The answer would be, under my direction.

Q—And why?

A—Having received instructions from Mr. Boulon where such entries should have been made or rather where such entries have been made.

Q—At the time this investigation was started after the arrival of Mr. Smith had all of the exchange contracts for purchase made in the name of the company been entered in the books as of the dates when the purchase were made?

A—No.

Q—How many were not entered, roughly?

A—About ten or a dozen.

Q—And where were these contracts?

A—Some of them in Mr. Boulon's possession.

Q—And when did you get them from Mr. Boulon?

A—After his return from New York.

Q—And when did you get possession of the others?

A—Prior to his departure, on or about the date when the sale offsetting the purchase was made.

Q—And were those dates prior to the date when you received these documents from Mr. Boulon prior to his departure?

A—In case of a purchase, yes.

Q—In case of a sale?

A—Probably on the same date.

Q—Who would have the possession of these documents prior to that?

A—Mr. Boulon.

Q—And why had not they been entered in the book in regular order?

A—They could not be entered in the book because we did not have possession of them in the accounting division.

(Witness testified that all these entries were made under Mr. Boulon's instructions, etc.)

Cross Examination: Mr. Haskell:

Q—Now Mr. Jones, when Mr. Boulon held these exchange contracts do you know where he kept them?

A—In his own possession.

Q—I put it to you they were on the top of his desk, weren't they?

A—I have seen them on his desk.

Q—Under the glass on top of his desk?

A—I would not say under the glass. I have seen them on top.

Q—I suggest to you that they were kept there by Mr. Boulon so that he could watch the contracts and at the same time watch exchange quotations and made the sale when it was favorable.

A—All right, I am not to know that.

Q—That is quite possible he did that, isn't it?

Mr. Fleming: Objection:

Court: At any time before the sale of any of these exchange contracts did Mr. Boulon tell you that they were for his own personal benefit?

A—He did not tell me he purchased for his own account, but he told me he had the purchase contract. He said "I am holding it, I have it."

Q—But never told you it was for his own account?

A—I cannot recall to mind his ever having said so.

Mr. Haskell:

Q—During this period from March to June did you know that Mr. Boulon was speculating in exchange?

A—I did not know definitely.

Q—You had a pretty good idea he was, didn't you?

A—If you ask my opinion, I knew he was. In my opinion he was.

Q—For whose account would he be speculating?

Mr. Fleming: If the Court pleases how could he tell that. It would be more speculation on the witness's part to answer that.

Q—Do you know for whose account Mr. Boulon was speculating?

A—In one or two instances, yes.

Q—Who?

A—Mine.

Q—And in the other instances?

A—I do not know.

Q—Was he speculating on behalf of the company?

A—Not to my knowledge.

Reds In Decisive Struggle With Army Of General Wrangel

(Reuter's Service)

Sebastopol, Nov. 8.—Very fierce fighting with fluctuating result is in progress to the north of the Crimea. The Bolsheviks are making the most strenuous endeavors to cut off General Wrangel from the peninsular at the neck of which he is still holding Perekop. A decisive issue is pending.

KINGMAN & BROS.

How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per Head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly

(2) Filing with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.

(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

ANARCHIST BOMBS IN MILAN HOTEL

Two Exploded At Headquarters Of League Of Nations Society Delegates

Milan, October 15.—A bomb attack on the Hotel Cazor, where the British delegates to the Milan International Conference in connection with the League of Nations are in residence, was carried out by anarchists on Thursday night. Great damage was done, but fortunately no lives were lost.

The diabolical nature of the outrage is evidenced by facts related at today's inquiry. Of the two bombs thrown, the first was hurled into the vestibule of the hotel, the throwing being directed by signals to miscreants from an upper window of the hotel by one of the waiters, Cesare Bossi. After his arrest a quantity of anarchist literature was found in his room, and when cross-examined at police headquarters he made no secret of his Maximalist convictions or his membership in the Italian anarchist Syndicalist Party.

The second bomb, which exploded in a dark square fronting the hotel ten minutes later, was a large infernal machine to which was attached a time fuse more than forty feet long. The police have no doubt that, while the first bomb was intended to scatter destruction among the foreign guests inside the hotel, the second, which should burst only half an hour later, was calculated to increase the massacre among the crowd of sightseers and Royal Guards who would by that time be thronging the square.

Four other suspects since arrested have been released.

Although considerable material damage was done, there are only two cases of personal injury, the victims being the hotel director and another staff employe. In each case in injuries were slight.

Rome, October 15.—A general strike has been declared in Trieste, Bologna and Brescia, the Messaggero announces today.

The total casualties in the rioting at San Giovanni Rotondo yesterday are given in latest reports as fourteen killed and eighty seriously wounded.

According to the accounts, the casualties occurred as the result of Socialists taking possession of the City Hall and attempting to hoist the red flag. The invading forces, it is declared, fired at the carabinieri, and the latter, reinforced by troops, returned the fire. The messages add that a general strike has been proclaimed there.

Trieste, October 14 (Associated Press).—Nationalists demonstrators, for the most part youths and students, created a disturbance in the city today. Five persons were wounded, one of them fatally, during the disorder.

Bombs were thrown, and a building which housed a Socialist newspaper was set on fire. Those employed in the plant made their escape through the window.

Joseph E. Haven, the American Consul, was in the neighborhood at the time with an American newspaper correspondent. There was heavy firing all around them, but neither was hurt.

The nationalists, led by a young veteran of the World War named Fascisti, staged the demonstration as a protest against a general strike called by the Socialists. The latter announced after the outbreak their intention to remain on strike indefinitely.

Brescia, Italy, October 14.—One person was killed and several wounded during serious disturbances today at the conclusion of a meeting of strikers, revolver shots being fired at the police. Order has been restored.

WEATHER

Rough weather around Formosa and in the Strait, because of the approaching typhoon. Strong winds, or gale from the north quadrant along the whole coast.

The News Of The Day

LET the cables write the editorial for you today. They are unusually interesting. Lord Robert Cecil is demanding the immediate admittance of Germany into the League of Nations in order to create a strong bulwark against further wars. Isn't that more interesting than finding out who won the Champions—that is, as long as you know you didn't hold the winning ticket? Certainly it is vastly more important. Germany as a bulwark against further wars!

Then there is Poland demanding that all trains passing through the Polish corridor must be provided with German engines contrary to the Versailles Treaty. This the message says would cripple German traffic "already handicapped by nearly unsurmountable obstacles."

We will skip the items about the new murders in Ireland and the Bolsheviki having created a system of agitators and "missionaries" all over the world, stronger than that of the German General Staff before the war, and go on to the item about the disappearance of Austria from the map and the efforts of the Allies to put it back on the map. This you might couple with the news of Lord Robert Cecil's views. The Allies are now trying to save Austria and many of their most brilliant leaders are urging the immediate admittance of Germany to the League of Nations as a bulwark against future wars.

The Great War changed the world in many ways; in fact many people think that the wreck is complete. And thinking this, they go about scattering their money in all sorts of unsafe ventures and amusing themselves by indulgence in every extravagance. They are inclined to think that work is the only extravagant thing in the world. Why work? You only get money for it, and money! It is no longer any good. Get what you can for it, while you can get anything.

And yet, if you told these people who are so recklessly gambling that they are Bolshevists and are only promoting Bolshevism, they would grow pale and recoil from the thought. Nine out of ten of them have not one thought in common with Bolshevism. Most of them don't even know what it is. In which respect they are on a par with the Bolshevists themselves. The people who are now tossing money into every red-lighted doorway they pass know well enough that it isn't the thing to do. They are not the people they were six years ago. If they think they are let them but look back to the things they held dear in other days. Work and thrift are the things that count, not only here but all over the world and they are the things that will succor civilisation from the abyss into which it has fallen.

But let us go back to the Reuter's dispatch from Paris for a moment, the one about the likelihood of Austria disappearing from the map of Europe. This is foreshadowed by Sir William Goode, President of the Austrian section of the Allied Reparations Commission. Interviewed by Reuter, he said that the delegates of the nine Powers on his section have presented a unamimous report to the Reparations Commission, from which it is expected that the powers may make the grave decisions indicated. He pointed out "that conditions in Austria had reached such a point that the corporate existence of the country had practically become impossible. Exchange had fallen 1,000 points in the last four months, the pound sterling being quoted at 1,700. Former parts of Austria such as Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Poland had agreed that immediate action was necessary."

That dispatch is dated November 7. Under date of November 8, Reuter's brings a dispatch from Vienna to the effect that it is reported there "that the Allied Austrian Reparations Commission will recommend the granting to Austria of credits totalling $250,000,000 in five installments to be spread over a period January, 1921 to January, 1925."

Now this also should be read in connection with the other dispatches we have emphasised. For this commission was sent to Austria not to lend money but to exact reparations. It winds up by recommending a loan of $250,000,000. So if you think that the world isn't continuing to change, you have not been following the news closely and have probably arrived at some wrong conclusions.

Skipping the important speech of Count Okuma on the California question, and also the stirring developments in Mesopotamia, Russia, Siberia, Italy, and most points west and east, we come to the news that the United States is likely to protest against the secret agreement of last August between Great Britain, France and Italy, defining their respective spheres of influence in Turkey, on the ground that it is a violation of the well recognised principle of the "Open Door." Well, you can write your own ticket on this.

And then, in closing, and getting back to the question of whether money is any good, or ever going to be any good we have a dispatch from London, dated November 9, which discloses that European currencies, have slumped again, the Continental exchanges being demoralised. The lire are now going at 100 to the pound sterling, while the pound sterling is down to $3.35 U.S. Currency, the lowest since last February. And the marks are five a penny!

This means that the lira, formerly worth about 20 cents U.S. Currency is now worth 3 1-3 cents, and the mark, formerly worth over 24 cents U.S. Currency is now worth three-tenths of a cent U.S. Currency, and the Austrian Krone, formerly worth approximately 20 cents U.S. Currency is now worth less than two one-thousandths of one cent. In relation to U.S. Currency even the pound sterling has dropped over 30 percent.

All this looks confusing and disheartening and the people begin turning their pockets inside out to get rid of the rolls of paper which they have accumulated. They do not understand.

Their money will be all right when they abandon this orgy of spending, when they quit hating and quit talking politics; when they go back to work and begin to save a portion of what they earn.

Work and thrift are the things that will save the world, not extravagance, idleness and indulgence. That is, work and thrift will save the world for civilisation and from savagery. As they have done before.

Do you ever read the news?

Unrest In Sicily

BY MAURICE MAGNUS

Sicily, the garden of Italy, is also the stepchild of Italy. Sixty years have passed since the Sicilian rallied around the Garibaldian banners to oust the incompetent and tyrannical Bourbon Kings. The Bourbons were insupportable, and it was less sympathy for a united Italy or love for the Piedmontese which prompted their quick action. Garibaldi was a hero, a liberator, an apostle of freedom, and as such he was hailed by the populace who could not bear the Neapolitan yoke any longer.

But the northern and central Italian, though he is anxious enough to have the political adherence of Sicily and takes as his right the rich produce of a fertile land whenever he needs it, treats the Sicilian and Sicily with contempt. Sicily's protests fall on deaf ears. Her Deputies are yelled down in Parliament or persecuted. Her railways are the extreme in lack of utility and comforts. When a carriage is no longer fit to travel in on the peninsula it is sent to Sicily. New roads are not built—the interior and the dormant "latifondi" are out of reach of modern transportation facilities and are therefore forced to remain uncultivated. The excellent through services of the trains of the peninsula stop short the moment the Straits of Messina are crossed.

Every imaginable trade, business, public convenience and combine on the peninsula of Italy have been striking for months. Revolution is rife—agitation but no work; and a weak Government, fearful of its approaching end, strives to conciliate these senseless elements, which are still further menacing the already critical economic condition of the country, not by harsh and severe measures, but by continuing to feed these good-for-nothings at the expense of those who do their honest work and abstain from agitation and strikes and employing thousands of useless employes at sinecure salaries in order to protect itself and secure the vote and support of these "affaristi."

Sicily is tired of these theatrical manipulations of a weak and infirm Government, which only thinks of the preservation of its own incompetent self and the sinecures which it involves.

Sicily is a rich country—its soil is prodigious—its natural wealth astounding—its people industrious, peaceful, hardworking, wishing peace and to enjoy the fruits of peace.

There is not enough to eat on the peninsula, and the Government comes in to confiscate and sequester the hardearned fruits of the Sicilian farmer, which he has labored for untiringly. He sees his food taken out of his mouth, and is obliged to buy what he needs elsewhere.

Sicily could be self-supporting, if the ruthless measures of the Continental Government did not interfere and rob the island in this shameless manner. The Sicilian lira could be at par with England and America. Sicily's imports for 1919 amounted to 400,000,000 lire, her exports to 1,200,000,000 lire.

Gun against gun did cope.

FRENCHY and Yankee and Tommy,
Each with his "Little Bit" done—
All three Gone West to the Maker,
Three martyrs' crowns have won.
Frenchy wand'ring o'er No Man's Land
Thinking to take a chance,
Gathered the bullet meant for him,
Smiled and shouted "Vive la France!"

TOMMY, snug in his dugout
Answered the cry of a chum,
Carried him back to safety
But the Angel of Death whispered "Come."
Hit near the heart by a sniper
But struggling on till he's nigh
To trench and home. His chum is saved.
A grip of the hand—"Good Bye."

YANKEE daring and eager
To carry his flag to the fore,
Longing to see the Stars and Stripes
Muffle the cannon's roar.
Blazing a path to victory
Treading the crimson sod,
Facing the flight of a screaming shell—
Then Westward to meet his God.

THESE are the stories of heroes
Who fought for and won World Peace,
Frenchy and Yankee and Tommy
Dying that wars shall cease.
Sowing their blood in the land "Over There"
Sowing it plenteously, too—
That a harvest of Worldwide Brotherhood
Might be reaped for me and you.

FRANCE has given her sons in the cause,
Given her wealth and her lands,
Britain thrown in her Empire's might
Her children from farthest strands.
America's States United
Gave resources before unknown—
Mothers all over the U.S.A.
Gave their sons and were left alone.

RED, white and blue for Frenchy,
Red, white and blue Tommy too—
Red, white and blue for Yankee,
For red, white and blue stands true.
Red is the blood that they all have shed,
White is their Cause, Liberty,
Blue is the color of sea and sky,
Boundless and ever free.

FRENCHY and Yankee and Tommy!
Red, white and blue they unite,
Fast in the bonds of Friendship—
Let them stand ever for Right,
Tie them together like brothers,
Like brothers that fought and bled,
Let the red, white and blue seal forever
The work of the Mighty Dead.

Fact As Rival Of Fiction

Imagination Of Most Gifted Novelist Outdone By Life's Real Romances

Among the bright-covered magazines on the news stands is one whose name announces that it is devoted to true stories, and a sub-title calls attention to the good old poverb that "truth is stranger than fiction." Truth in this case makes the concession of trying to appear as much like fiction as possible. But it is not in the realm of magazines that one would look first for the verification of our ancient adage that truth is stranger than fiction. The news of the world as it is turned out day by day is to a very large extent concerned with the strange and unusual thing, often paralleling fiction, often going beyond it. The variety of the possible combination of circumstances is so great as to surpass the imagination of the most fertile fictionist.

Ask any one what events chronicled in the newspapers are or have been stranger than fiction, and the first answer will probably be the war itself. The war, certainly. No one did and no one could have imagined or written down such a stupendous tragedy as the world has just gone through. It is a case where the plain facts have far outdistanced the fictionists as well as the historians looking into the future. Old Bernhardi, knowing what the German ruling class had in mind, knew that war with France and Russia was coming and the world as a whole had slowly been prepared through years for a European clash. But no one foresaw a conflict in which the whole world would be involved, a war which would cost millions of lives and money running into the hundreds of billions of dollars.

Not only the war as a thing in itself but unnumbered phases and incidents of the war passed beyond the imaginations of the men who wrote before 1914. America's part in it alone forms an almost unbelievable episode. What writer would have dared, a decade even ago, to have told of an American army of 2,000,000 men fighting over the old battlefields of Northern France and Belgium?

What brilliant fictionist could have pictured the results of the war? The restoration of crushed nations of Europe, the break-up of old empires? What revolutionary genius of fiction would have fancied a Russia under the Bolsheviki for nearly three years? Who could have given an air of reality to a romance in 1913 dealing with the fate of the Czar of Russia or Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany?

The true stories of the heroic deeds of the war, the personal experiences and tragic incidents, are in many cases too strange and unreal to have passed unquestioned in the pages of fiction. A gun with a range of seventy-five miles drops a shell into a Paris church at the moment it is crowded for Good Friday mass. No wonder that for days the world would not believe that such a thing had happened! The first use of gas by the Germans against the British in the Ypres sector was another fact the world could not bring itself to believe without great effort. The first air raids, the first submarine attacks on passenger ships and even the announcement that the German troops were marching on France through Belgium upset all the order of thinking in a supposedly sane world. A world which has lived through the days since August, 1914, will have no reason to doubt that truth is stranger than fiction.

Before the war it used to be said that the Titanic disaster was the most extraordinary event from the standpoint of news. Tales of disaster, of fire, flood and earthquake belong in that improbability which is a part of the probable. The strange combination of circumstances gave the Titanic a place apart in the record of disaster—the great ship on her first voyage, supposedly unsinkable, striking an iceberg in the North Atlantic, carrying down with her 1,400 persons, many of them among the most prominent in this country and Europe. Among the tales of the sea what tale so strange as the true story of the Titanic?

These are general examples, chosen at random. Stranger things on a smaller scale form a part of every day's news.

For years the imaginative story of Jules Verne on submarines, called "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," was a bromide among writers and talkers who wished to mention the ultra-fictional and the fantastically imaginative. Yet the vividness of that story contained nothing so picturesque and certainly nothing so true as that epic tale of underseas suffering and heroism brought into this port and Philadelphia from off the Delaware Capes last week by the survivors of the American submarine S-5.

Disabled in a practice crash dive, the submarine was tilted by her Commander so that her stern stood out of water, and while cataracts swept through her compartments as the doors were opened between them, officers and men climbed to the part of the ship that stood above the waves—not knowing that any part of the vessel was above the water line. Then for nearly thirty hours the crew battled for life, without drinking water, in heavy atmosphere poisoned with chlorine gas, and with only scraps of food to eat.

They ripped a hole in the steel plates of the vessel, put a red shirt on a pipe and waved their signal until help came. Then, each disclaiming credit for heroism by giving praise to some one else in the crew, they were rescued by steamship Captains and a heroic engineer who labored for hours to cut a large hole through the submarine's plates.

Stranger than any piece of fiction is the truth about 900 Russian children who were in this city for several days last week, war refugees and most of them orphans who were traveling around the world to get back to their native land. The stories of the adventures of those boys and girls are, some of them, more fantastic than any of those experiences of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn in flying in a balloon over the Sahara or meeting the Duke and the Dauphin on the murky waters of the Mississippi.

One hundred of the more adventurous lads escaped from Fort Wadsworth and wandered forth into the great city, seeking to get close to its heart and pleasures. Some were recaptured, but those who were not still wander through the mazes of this Bagdad on the Subway seeking fresh adventures in a strange land.

There were stories, too, that infant Soviets hold sway in their midst and that here and there a Czar reigns over a clique with iron hand.

Every ship that comes into the port brings some story, perhaps sad, perhaps amusing, that matches Dana or Cooper or Conrad. Truth, but like fiction, is the story of Jacob Cohen, who has been called the "Man Without a Country," and the "Human Shuttle," who sails the high seas from country to country, everywhere deemed an desirable and turned away by the immigration authorities. With no country to go to, he sails from port to port, a citizen of Nepture's domains, perhaps changing ships occasionally, but always traveling the seas. It is time for him to arrive back at some American port from Buenos Ayres or some other remote port—and for a few days the newspapers again will record his story which is stranger than fiction.

Stowaways by hundreds come into this port from all the countries of the world and their stories have been told so many times that sometimes the newspapers omit any mention of them. They range from lads of 10 and 12 years old to old men with the vision of adventure in a new land still before their eyes—and some are women. What fiction writer would have dared to write such a story as was brought into this port only last week by the steamship Philadelphia when Jean Tucker, an eighteen-year-old English girl stowaway was found in a dark and dismal hole in the bow of the ship which had always been considered too foul and inaccessible to be the dwelling place of any rat.

Yet, for love of a sailor on this ship, who urged her to come to this country to marry him, she crawled into this dark place, and, while the ship rolled and plunged across the ocean, she stood knee deep in water for nine days. She could see nothing; her only air came in over an ill-smelling potato locker; she was forced to stand in the low place with head bent and shoulders humped or lean in a cramped position against the wall. She could not sit down because the hole was full of water and, in this dark place, she said she knew no fear except when the ship collided with a whale, and she, cramped in between the ship's bow plates, heard the terrific impact and thought the vessel had struck an iceberg. Almost dead she was dragged from the hold the day after the ship reached port and is now in Ellis Island Hospital, awaiting deportation to England. Where in fiction is a better story of fidelity and woman's courage? And this story is true. Jean Tucker is in this city now and her story is on official records.

Some of these stories from the far corners of the earth are so strange and fantastic that hardheaded editors demand confirmation of every detail before the tale is given to the public. Well-read in fiction, they can admit that some of these true stories of the sea and of foreign lands are far more strange. There was recently the true story of the Greek steamship Thessaloniki that fought ninety-mile gales for a week during the heaviest Winter weather on the Atlantic, with engines disabled and food lockers empty, until help stood by to take off crew and passengers. The ship was never seen again.

Then there is the mystery of the Cyclops, which never reached her port and was swallowed up in the high seas.

These are stories the reader feels to be far more strange than fiction, for while fiction seems to struggle to be real or realistic, the truth seems to struggle to be unreal and fantastic, or at least romantic.

Plots of many of the great operas, or some great novels, and of many works of fiction not so great, are based upon police court cases, upon murders, thievery, or some other crime. Accompanied by music and surrounded by the jewels of the Diamond Horseshoe, the sordid crime story may become "high art."

In many of the hundred or so murders in this city every year frequently there are a score which, before the police step in, are just as romantic as any love story in the fiction of Thomas Hardy—although Hardy carried his cases to the courts and frequently to the gallows. There are murders for love, murders for great spoils and sums of money, and stranger than any fiction are the unsolved murders committed in this city in silk, bond and whisky thefts.

Substitute "gold" for "whisky" in the story of the Eckert murder on Staten Island a few weeks ago, and you have a yarn as fantastic as "Treasure Island," with details true—and the entire story is not yet printed. Where is anything more fantastic in fiction than the Elwell murder, which every reader knows? But most of these crimes have remained unsolved, so that in these days fiction surpasses truth because a "fiction" detective is far more efficient and resourceful than he who works for $2,000 or so a year and doesn't particularly enjoy his work.

Where in fiction is anything more fantastic than that unsolved murder of two Chinese Government representatives in the Chinese Embassy at Washington or some of the Chinese murders in this city? Or the Italian vendettas in this city, many of whose killings never find their way into print because the crimes are so numerous? And the "romantic murders," with disappointed love as the motive, how many foolish swains can be found each year in a Metropolitan district of 8,000,000, and how many suicides are committed after disappointments in a chief interest in life? In the hand of a master plotter and character sketcher they are romance, but in the police records they are merely sordid, unpleasant chronicles, but, nevertheless, like fiction and true.

A few months ago Major Alden G. McMurtry, an officer who was disappointed at not seeing service in France, entered the cellar of a mansion in Greenwich, Conn., and, firing at pistol flashes in the dark, after bullets had smashed his hand electric lamp with a tinkling of glass, killed two burglars who were waiting there to slay him. There is the same sort of fight in the basement of "The House of a Thousand Candles," by Meredith Nicholson. Sherlock Holmes fought his captors in the gas chamber and fooled them by placing his lighted cigar tip on a ledge in the dark chamber so that they rushed against the wall, and he escaped. There is the fight in the roundhouse in "Kidnapped"—and scores of other fights of similar nature in other of Stevensons' works and in those of other writers. But Major McMurtry's act of heroism was not brain figment—it was truth!

It is still within the memory of some newspaper readers that a few years ago a middle-aged woman living in Bank Street, with a cat as her only companion and with little money to her name, refused an estate of $40,000 because she thought that the money was "tainted." The money was hers without contest. All she had to do was to go to the Surrogates' Court to claim it, and yet for months she held steadfastly to her purpose of refusing the money. That story was truth, not fiction.

Hundreds of instances of persons having great wealth thrust upon them suddenly might be found in the files of The New York Times in the last few years, as well as instances of persons in humble circumstances who, by some turn of luck, made great sums of money merely by getting some recognition for their natural abilities.

The latest case of luck is that of Arthur T. Walker, private secretary to Edward F. Searles, who was the heir of his employer's estate, variously estimated at between $5,000,000 and $50,000,000, but which later estimates have placed nearer the first figure. He had worked twelve years for Searles at a small salary, was very shy, of modest habits, and had no intimation that he was to be the heir to millions. But luck came to him in August, and he is now a millionaire. Further back along the trail of these millions is another story stranger than fiction. The nucleus of this fortune that is now Walker's was

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"How can an electric current produce light and heat in a vacuum if oxygen has to be present for anything to ignite and cause light and heat?"—O. R.

The presence of oxygen is not necessary for the production of heat and light, but only for the production of combustion (burning or oxidation), which is a process of chemical combination in which oxygen plays a necessary part. The light of an electric incandescent lamp is produced by the agitation of the molecules of the filament through which the current is driven against resistance.

In the electric arc lamp the light comes from incandescent carbon vapor given off from the terminals between which the electric spark is formed. The carbons themselves also glow brightly with the heat, and if air is freely admitted to the arc considerable combustion of the carbons takes place. The light of candles, and of oil and gas lamps is produced by combustion, and of course, requires the presence of oxygen.

A STREET CAR MIRROR

"Sitting near the front of an open car, with a glass barrier between me and the front platform, I saw myself as if in a mirror whenever the motor driver's back was in line with my eyes on the other side of the glass. Of course, I know the glass did it, but I don't see how it acted as a mirror only when the motorman's back was behind it. Can you explain?—S"

No doubt the motorman wore a dark coat. If it had been white the reflection would have been fainter and you might not have noticed it at all. The explanation is that glass always reflects a certain proportion of the light incident upon it, and this reflected light produces an image of the object from which it came before falling upon the glass—your figure, for instance, as you faced the glass barrier. But owing to the general illumination of the space behind the glass the relatively faint image is submerged and ordinarily unnoticed. But when the interposition of the body of the motorman cut off the flood of light from behind the glass, and thus darkened the background, the image, which had all the time been there unseen, gained so much in relative brightness that it stood plainly forth. By a little experimentation with glass screens you can easily verify this explanation. You will find that the brightness of the reflected image always increases proportionally with the darkening of the background.

EARTH VIEWED FROM MOON

"Will you kindly state how large the earth would appear to one were it possible to travel to the moon and, on arriving at the center of its apparent disk about the time of the new moon, gaze up at the earth's disk directly overhead? Would the sun's rays appear to be reflected from one large bright spot on the earth's ocean surface and would the land areas of the earth appear as the dark spots on the moon or as the light spots on the moon appear to us?—W. D., Boston."

Your statement shows so correct a comprehension of the geometrical relationship of your imaginary observer on the moon to the earth that I should have expected you to solve the question of the apparent size of the earth for yourself. Its disk would look as much larger than the full moon looks to us as the square of the diameter of the earth exceeds the square of the diameter of the moon.

Calling the earth's mean diameter 7,920 miles and that of the moon 2,160 miles we see that the former exceeds the latter 3 2-3 times. Now since the relative size of circular disks is proportional to the squares of their diameters we find that the apparent size of the earth seen from the moon would be 13.44 times as great as the apparent size of the moon seen from the earth. Supposing the reflective powers to be the same area from area, earthlight on the moon would be 13.44 times as bright as moonlight on the earth.

The general appearance of the earth's oceans would probably be that of bluish or greenish-blue expanses, while the continents would be of a generally lighter hue, of various tones, becoming whitish in rough, barren and mountainous regions, and quite white about the polar regions. Under special circumstances there might be gleams of reflected lights from parts of the convex ocean surfaces.

PLAIN CIRCLE OF LIGHT

Around the earth's circumference there would be a more or less conspicuous circle, or corona, of light due to refraction by the terrestrial atmosphere. This would be a brilliant phenomenon when the earth was exactly between the sun and the observer on the moon. We see it from the opposite standpoint during a total lunar eclipse when the moon's surface seems to glow through the shadow with a reddish or copperish colored illumination. But the most interesting feature of the scenes presented by the earth seen from the moon would be the constantly changing aspects of the view due to the earth's rotation.

The earth would virtually stand fast in the sky for an observer at the center of the lunar hemisphere that faces it, but would continually revolve on its axis, like a turning ball, revealing in succession all of its continents and oceans. The imagination, guided by strictly scientific deductions, may furnish endless entertainment with the shifting pictures of that wondrous spectacle.

assembled by Mark Hopkins, one of the builders of the Union Pacific Railroad, who bequeathed it to his wife. After Hopkins's death there came to the Hopkins mansion on Telegraph Hill in San Francisco a very shrewd and obliging paperhanger to do some work for Mrs. Hopkins. His keen wisdom and shrewdness in business so impressed Mrs. Hopkins that she married him. Then she passed the fortune on to him upon her death, and now the pioneer railroader's millions are in the care of hands still more alien to them.

Stories—some true—of sudden leaps to fame and fortune by singers, actors and artists are legion. Last Winter Caruso was training a protege for the opera stage. Most of the great men of the day have some person whom they have chosen to encourage and assist because they think that some omniscience tells them of qualities in their protege, and so the stories of astonishing successes are legion. And, speaking of artists, is not the true story of the sufferings of the artist Blakelock stranger than fiction?

Many fictional stories lately have had as their plots financial fights among wealthy men in Wall Street, in business, or on the Stock Exchange. Can any of these stories surpass in interest the true story of the fight for the last few months between Alan A. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, and the New York Stock Exchange over the exclusion of Stutz Motors stock, and the long controversy over settlement with brokers who were "short" of the stock? And there are other true stories fully as good—of races across the ocean for large orders in foreign countries, for concessions and other big stakes.

Legion, too, are the true stories of thefts of jewels and bonds in amounts running into the hundreds of thousands. Who would have believed that any person could have stolen nearly $300,000 worth of gems from a safety deposit box in the crowded lobby of the Hotel Biltmore, get away and keep the theft hidden for months? Yet the loss of that sum of gems was discovered on June 13, 1919, by Mrs. Clarence Millhiser of Richmond, Va., and even at first the authenticity of the story was doubted by the police and other men who have access to reports of big robberies. Among the jewels were thirty large pearls and a diamond said to be about 20 carats in weight. All but about $45,000 worth of the jewels were recovered by the police and private detectives, and a man is now serving a term in Sing Sing. And there are other immense thefts of moving picture films, silks, cash—and who hasn't read the stories of the bond thefts running into millions?

True stories of heroism? There was the story only two weeks ago of the fireman who had been kicked out of the Fire Department who saw a fire in a tenement and, at the risk of his own life, saved a family of seven from death in the flames and won reinstatement in the department for himself. Hardly a week goes by that the Fire or Police Department does not record some thrilling story of heroism among its members. And there is another host of stories of the gallant traffic cop who saves the beautiful girl from sure death under her runaway horse's hoofs and then marries her.

Can Irvin S. Cobb or Ellis Parker Butler match this true story in these shaky days of prohibition—this story that is writ in letters bold in the police records in the West Forty-seventh Street station? A man who had drunk freely of new brew left his rendezvous in a daze, and, reaching the street, leaned against a post. He wanted another drink, and, remembering that the prescription in the place whence he came was to press a button a certain number of times, he pressed a button; but this one happened to be on a police signal and he didn't get his highball from the angry cop who answered the signal.

And speaking of truth being stranger than fiction, how about Babe Ruth?

Siccawei Weather Reports

9.—The depression takes an elongated shape across the Yellow sea and the sea of Japan, between two high centers, the one in N China, the other at the Bonin. Northerly squalls, hard in Shantung. The typhoon continues to approach Luzon along the 15th parallel. Light breezes in the Formosa Strait, between the typhoon and the depression. Intermittent rain, here and in our Valley, with squalls in the evening.

10.—The squalls continue but the rain is stopped. The temperature is falling notably and the pressure is rising.

"A room without pictures is like a house without windows"

—JOHN RUSKIN

Pictures are necessary to the successful scheme of Furnishing and Decorating

The beauty of many furnished and decorated rooms has been marred by the haphazard selection of unsuitable prints and frames out of style with the furniture. The selection of the right type of print and subject, and the method of framing, require sound judgment based on experience.

The services of our experts are at your disposal in the selection of suitable prints from our stock, comprising reproductions from the Masterpieces in Private Collections and the leading Art Galleries in Europe.

New York Bonds Are Sold To State At Over Price, Charge

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 7.—As the result of an inquiry into alleged irregularities in the State Comptroller's Office, Justice Kernochan has ordered Comptroller Eugene M. Travis to be committed before the Grand Jury under the statute relating to the payment of fraudulent claims.

Justice Kernochan based his finding on the payment of $2,000,000 for New York City bonds which were sold to the State at $89.50 when the market price was only $82.00. The alleged overpayment amounted to $140,000.

French Railways To Be Reorganised

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 8.—In the course of an interview, published in the "Petit Parisien," the French Premier outlined the Government's program for the coming session of Parliament. The program includes various measures for the reorganisation of railways along modern lines, the restoration of the war stricken districts, the improvement of agriculture and trade conditions in the French Colonies, and the strengthening of the Union with the Allies.

Mark Twain Placed In Hall Of Fame By New York Vote

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 7.—The Electors of the Hall of Fame connected with New York University, have admitted to a place in the Hall Mark Twain; James Eads, engineer; Patrick Henry, patriot; William Morton, physician; St. Gaudens, sculptor; Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island; and Alice Palmer, teacher.

Semenoff Expected To Join Kappell

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, Nov. 9.—In the course of a statement General Oi the Japanese commander expressed the hope that the Partisans in the Zabaikal were not operating at the instigation of Verkhne-Udinsk, and added that, should this prove to be the case, the Japanese command would demand an explanation from Verkhne-Udinsk. So long as the Communists ignored international law, Soviet Russia would not enjoy the world's confidence.

It was likely that Ataman Semenoff's and General Kappell's forces would unite and commence operations in the case of a Bolshevist attack. Should internal war break out in the vicinity of the Japanese troops, the General said, the necessary steps would be taken. The Japanese command would not allow the Communists to extend their principles to Vladivostok.

Bolshevik Captives Delivered To Odessa

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—Sixty-one British prisoners from Baku, naval, military and civilian, have arrived at Tiflis. The British Vice-Consul has stayed on at Baku to collect a few prisoners, who had been authorised to live in the town. Orders have been given to hand over Bolshevik prisoners to the authorities at Odessa.

Sun Yat-sen's Son Honored At Canton

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 8.—F. O. Sun, Dr Sun Yat-sen's son, has been formally installed Director of the Municipality of Canton, a position similar to that of Mayor.

Gen. Chen Chiung-ming states that he is not in favor of the return to Canton of the members of the Old Parliament from Shanghai.

GERMAN STRIKE NEAR END, BELIEF

Agitators Fail To Obtain Necessary Votes To Continue Trouble

Shanghai, Nov. 10.—The following are extracts from a German propaganda wireless message from Nauen, picked up by the United States Consulate-General wireless station here today. They are issued with all due reserve.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The strike leaders did not obtain the two-thirds majority necessary for continuing the strike of municipal workers. Consequently the strike of electrical workers is nearing an end.

The workers have renounced for the time being their claim for an increase of wages but demand that their classification shall be altered and that uniform wages shall be granted to all municipal workers.

Negotiations are still in progress and a settlement is thought probable.

Nauen, Nov. 9.—The Upper Silesian electricity workers' strike is at an end as the Workers' Council disapprove of a "wild strike."

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The Government today informed the main committee of the Reichstag that the number of people expelled from Alsace and Lorraine was 111 000. It was stated that the progress of disarmament was satisfactory and that over 12 00 machine-guns and nearly 2,000,000 rifles had been surrendered up to that time.

PRAISED U. S. TROOPS

(Rerter's Service)

New York, November 9.—General Nivelle has arrived in New York. Replying to an address of welcome, the General praised the part played by the American troops in the great war.

GOURAND GOES HOME

(Rerter's Service)

Marseilles, November 9.—General Gourand, who has sailed from the Levant on board the Lotus, is expected to arrive here tomorrow afternoon.

Aeroplanes Active In Mesopotamia

(Rerter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—A Mesopotamia communique reports continued aerial activity on the Middle Euphrates against hostile gatherings to the south-east of Kufa, in which a pilot was wounded, but the leader of the insurgent forces and the majority of the sections of the most important tribes in this area surrendered unconditionally on November 4. The 83rd Brigade column has established and wired control posts around Kerbela. The town itself is quiet but some sniping has occurred.

On the Upper Euphrates the company sent to relieve the garrison of Hit arrived on November 4. Telegraphic communication with Bagdad has been restored and the area is now quiet. The 75th Brigade column reached Shahraban on November 4.

U.S. Expedition To Study Asia Tribes

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 7.—The Missing Link Expedition, which is starting for China in February, will also study the aborigina tribes of Asia, such as the Lolos, Mosos and Lisos, which are said to be fast disappearing from China.

Mr. Roy Chapman Andrews will be the leader of the expedition which will bring back 100,000 specimens of Asiatic animal and plant life, which will be placed in the proposed $1,000,000 "Hall of Asiatic Life" in New York.

DANUBE CONFERENCE

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 9.—The International Danube Conference reassembled yesterday afternoon. The conference continued its discussion of the regime to be applied to the Iron Gates section of the river, and decided to refer the question to the next sitting which will be held tomorrow.
